FARNHAM RETIRES COURSE IS FAST

Mayor Will Not Run for a Third Term

He Declared Himself This Morning and Leaves the Field to McKinley, Brown and Fiske—Is Walsh Looking for Thompson's Job?

Mayor Farnham will not be a candidate for a third term.

It's a fact, for he himself has said it, and he might as well know.

His Honor informed a reporter of The Sun this morning that after mature deliberation he had decided not to run again, but had made no plans as to the future. Mayor Farnham has not named his new private secretary as yet. "I have talked with none in relation to the matter, though there are several applicants," said His Honor.

With Mayor Farnham out of the contest the republican mayoralty nomination would appear to be between Hon. James McKinley, his neighbor, the Hon. George Brown and the Hon. Josiah Fielding Fiske. Alonzo G. Walsh has been mentioned for the nomination, but the wise ones say he is playing a deeper game.

Mr. Walsh is one of the several thousand original Taft men. He was also a delegate to the republican national convention. He met and became acquainted with the Taft managers, Hon. Butler Ames, the congressman from this district, who heretofore had the naming of the postmaster of the fifth district, was strenuously anti-Taft before the convention. In fact he was accused of stirring up an anti-Taft feeling wherever he went and was further accused of doctoring convention credentials. If Taft is elected president it would be comparatively an easy matter to override the congressman's choice for postmaster and put in a Taft man as postmaster. Congressman Ames' choice would be Postmaster Thompson, while the Taft man might be A. G. Walsh. You never can tell what will happen in politics. But, of course, if Mr. Walsh were mayor he couldn't very well be postmaster. But Mr. Walsh has not said that he wants to be mayor and probably will not run.

IN POLICE COURT

Man Charged With Stealing Cattle

HE IMPOUNDED HIS NEIGHBOR'S COWS.

And Claimed Compensation for Having Them—Case Continued—Several Assault Cases Before the Court—Billerica Man Fined for Violating Milk Law.

William Cann was arraigned in police court this morning on a complaint charging him with the larceny of two cows and three calves, the property of Dennis J. O'Brien, of South Chelmsford. The case was a rather peculiar one and Judge Hadley remarked that he was of the opinion that Mr. Cann did not realize how serious an offense he had committed and owing to this fact, the case was continued till tomorrow in order to give the man a chance to return the cattle.

Messrs. Cann and O'Brien live within a quarter of a mile of each other in the quiet little village of South Chelmsford, a land of one adjoining that of the other. Last Saturday morning Mr. O'Brien placed two cows and three calves in a pasture. He said that the pasture was strongly fenced and the calves could not get out without human aid. He came to Lowell and when he returned at 8.30 that night he was amazed to find that the cows and calves were missing. He searched every nook and corner of the pasture, but the cattle were nowhere in sight.

Later he was informed that his property was stabled in Mr. Cann's premises, but the latter refused to give up the animals unless Mr. O'Brien would turn over $3.50 for their care. This Mr. O'Brien refused to do and the result was the hearing in police court this morning.

Mr. O'Brien said that the cows and calves were annoying him and endangering his crops so he locked them up in the barn and thought he was justified in demanding a price for their care. He acknowledged on cross examination that they had done no damage, but he was of the opinion that an ounce of prevention was worth a pound of cure.

The seriousness of the case was laid down by the court and Mr. O'Brien promised to return the cattle.

VIOLATED MILK LAW.

William J. Riggerstaff, of Billerica, was charged with interfering with Frederick S. Marion, of Woburn, a milk inspector, also with violating the milk law by removing the cream from milk. He pleaded guilty and was fined $50 for violating the milk law, while the case of interfering with the officer was placed on the files of the court.

Oscar Jarvis pleaded guilty to being a vagrant and was sent to the state farm.

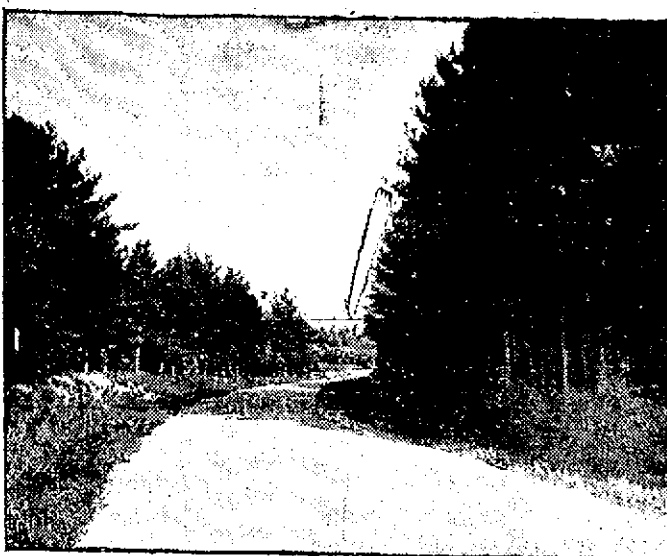

John Hockey, charged with being drunk, needed rest and the court sentenced him to 14 days in jail.

A number of cases slated for trial today were continued. The case of John Coskos and Michael Hanna, charged with assault and battery, will be heard on Sept. 9 as will the cases of Diab Miami. The case of Albert Rivet on the same charge, will be heard in court two weeks from today, and William L. Ferris vs. Dracut, charged with being a common drunkard, will appear before the court next Wednesday. Michael Dolan, charged with assault and battery on Charles John, had his case continued till Friday. There was one 32 drunk and four drunks were released by the probation officer.

ANOTHER DEATH

Hampshire, Ill., Girl Poisoned by Mother

CHICAGO, Sept. 2.—Lena Berna, the second daughter of Mrs. Matthew Berna, the Hampshire, Ill., woman who poisoned her three children and herself Monday, died yesterday. She is the second victim of the mother's deed. Mrs. Berna and her daughter, Frances, are still alive. Hopes are now being entertained for the recovery of the girl but it is said the mother cannot live more than two or three days. The youngest child, George, two months old died soon after the poisoning.

PORTION OF COURSE FOR AUTO RACE.

Auto Drivers Expect to Make Great Time on Monday

Looking through the witch's glass into the very near future a great crowd is seen in Lowell. It is Labor day and the transportation companies are at their wits' end to care for travel. The people are flocking in from all parts and the city is crowded. The banks of the Merrimack river, a river made famous in song and story, are lined with human faces, for the big motor race is on; the biggest affair of its kind ever witnessed in this section of the country.

That is what the witch's glass pictures for Labor day—next Monday, and from all appearances it would seem that the glass is properly peering for the interest in the great race is accumulating faster than the gold of the millionaire. It is almost superfluous to refer to the magnitude of the proposition because the newspapers have already conveyed the impression, but as a matter of fact the thing has assumed proportions greater than even that energetic, electrifying, progressive and magnetic wizard, John O. Heinze ever dreamed of.

NO SPEEDING ALLOWED.

Today we propose to deal with a plain explanatory story of the race in order that there may be answered completely the questions that come to us over the telephone at the rate of "steens" a minute.

The one thing that Mr. Heinze asked the writer to most particularly emphasize today had to do with speeding on the race course from now to the time that the bombs announcing "race over" have been exploded. Here are Mr. Heinze's qualify one fellow because of the recklessness of his daring in negotiating curves.

FACTS ABOUT THE RACE.

The race course will be closed to the public after 8 o'clock on the morning of the day of the race and the only avenue open to traffic after that hour will be by way of the overhead bridge now being constructed in Dunbar avenue. This bridge is being built to accommodate not only pedestrians but teams and automobiles. By way of the bridge persons on foot or in vehicles can cross over from Magnolia street to the truck road on the boulevard as far as the pumping station and this way will be open at all hours. The racing machines will pass under the bridge.

Varnum avenue and the speedway will be fenced off and the only way to get to the course will be along the river bank and through special gates at Magnolia street, where box offices will be stationed and where tickets for grand stand seats and parking stands may be obtained.

ABOUT FREE ADMITTANCE.

A great deal has been said and a great many questions have been asked relative to a general admission fee and to charge a general admission fee would be far from a popular or advisable thing to do. Asked today what the club intended to do about it, Mr. Heinze said that a general admission fee, which would mean a "stand up seat" on the bank of the river, of 25 cents, had been suggested, but that the same would not be collected unless words as near as we remember them: "Every automobile that is caught speeding over the course at a clip faster than is allowed by the state law will be pulled up and made to screech before the courts. From now on special officers will be stationed along the course, and I wish that you, through your paper, would give the public fair warning. This applies to the racers as well as to the tourist. Our try-out or speeding hours are from four to six in the morning. I was on the course this morning at four o'clock, and the drivers of the racers understand that if caught speeding after six o'clock they will be disqualified for the race. I was obliged this morning to threaten to disqualify the club found it absolutely necessary. "It to defray expenses," he said, "we find that it will be necessary to charge a general admission fee, then it will be impossible, but we hope to be able to get along without it."

The length of the course is 10.6 miles and each machine must negotiate this distance twenty-four times.

ACCOMMODATIONS FOR SPECTATORS
A contract for the installation of toilets at the grand stands was awarded yesterday to Farrell & Conant. In one stand six will be supplied for women and at another stand the same number will be put in place for men. The toilets will require the cost of pipe.

BOSTON WELL ADVERTISED.

The race promoters are doing more advertising out of town than at home. Besides using the newspapers in Boston, the race is being advertised by a four-horse team pulling forth the multitude of the racers.

The local militia officers met at the armory last night and made plans for the parading of the course on the day of the race. The companies will be recruited for the day, up to 12 noon each. This will, of course, include the local militia and specially drilled patrolmen. The local companies will retain their original names and will be assigned as follows: K, from hairpin curve to Country club, on boulevard; C, at grand stand and up boulevard, and G, between the outposts of K and C. A detachment of G men will be on the back road, as will the members of Company M and of Company L, of the Eighth regiment, Lawrence. The non-coms in all companies will wear khaki shirts and old fatigue caps. In all about 500 men will be used on the course.

There will be another meeting of the officers in charge of the course on Friday night, at the armory.

RACE WILL START AT 9 SHARP.

The race will start at ten sharp, and the start will be announced by cannon. There are nine entries up to the present time, and two more are expected. The cars will start one minute apart, and Mr. Heinze gave his opinion today that the race would occupy about five hours. One started, the drivers will be left to their own free will or destruction except that in the race they must not pass one another at any point where the road is less than 25 feet wide. Some have the impression that the race is purely and simply a waste of time, and entertaining that spoils the anticipation of the spectators. While it is a race against time, it is also a "really and truly" race. It is not to be expected that the car to start first will be first again at the starting point—not by any means. The desire to pass the fellow in front is the desire that consumes the driver and urges him on to the limit of his speed endurance. It is expected that most of the passing will be done on the boulevard because an attempt at passing on the back road would be a bit dangerous.

FUNERALS

SARGENT—The funeral of Mrs. Martha D. Sargent took place from her home, 79 Chelmsford street, yesterday afternoon, and was largely attended. Services were conducted by Rev. Sarah A. Dixon, and burial was in the Edison cemetery. Undertakers Currier Co. had charge.

MASON—The funeral of Paul E. Mason took place Tuesday afternoon from the rooms of Undertakers McDonough & Sons, and burial was in St. Peter's cemetery. Undertakers McDonough & Sons had charge.

SMITH—The funeral of Owen Smith took place this morning from his late home, 52 Common street, at 8.30 o'clock and was largely attended by sorrowing friends and relatives. The cortege proceeded to St. Patrick's church, where at 9 o'clock a high mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. Fr. Callahan. The choir, under the direction of Mr. Michael J. Johnson, sang the Gregorian mass and at the offertory Mr. Andrew McCarthy rendered "Die Jesu"; at the conclusion of mass the choir sang "In Paradisum" and as the remains were borne from the church "De Profundis" was rendered by the choir. There were many beautiful floral offerings, among them being a large pillow with inscription "Husband and Papa," from the bereaved family; large wreath on base from the employees of the York club; wreath of roses and asters, from Mr. and Mrs. John J. Cole; wreath of roses from Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Carey; large spray of asters, from Mr. and Mrs. Patrick J. Riley; large anchor on base, from Mr. and Mrs. George B. Hickey and Mr. John J. and Miss Annie L. Murry.

The bearers were Messrs. Andrew Shannon, John Sullivan, Patrick Sexton, James Sexton, Thomas Burns and James Maguire. Interment was in the Catholic cemetery, where Rev. Fr. Callahan gave the final absolution at the grave. Funeral Director James W. McKenna was in charge.

WATCHING THE CANOE PARADE AT LAKEVIEW.

CANOE PARADE

Great Attraction at Lakeview Last Night

The much talked of canoe parade and illumination was held at Lakeview last night and it proved to be such a success that the fondest anticipations of the most enthusiastic workers were fulfilled. There were about four thousand people in attendance they being lined along the water front and on the spacious plaza surrounding the dance hall.

The decorations about the park and water front, consisting of Japanese lanterns, were very pretty, the rays from the lanterns reflecting through the pine trees on to the water.

In order to keep the spectators in a merry frame of mind the National band, Dick Griffiths, leader, occupied a motor boat and dispensed sweet music. The National quartet rendered vocal selections which were greatly enjoyed.

There were 16 entries in the parade and it could be very plainly seen that many hours of labor must have been spent in fitting out the canoes. The ideas were original and the parade as a whole was unlike the usual run of canoe parades where year after year the same designs are shown.

The majority of the entries were members of the Iroquois canoe club, but other clubs and individuals figured. The judges were representatives of LeBois, Courier-Citizen, and The Sun, and it was with difficulty that they were able to determine the prize winners.

The first prize was captured by A. J. Lambert, George Lambert, J. Gannon and George Methee, whose feature was a Roscoe hunting scene. Teddy and a companion were the actual figures, both being attired in khaki uniforms, carrying guns.

and in fact had all the equipment of a hunter. A dog also occupied a prominent position and in fact the smallest detail was not forgotten. The second prize went to the Iroquois club, whose representative in the winning canoe was Joseph Kittredge. The canoe represented Bunker Hill monument, and considerable ingenuity must have been exercised by Mr. Kittredge in planning the exhibit, so that the light craft should not become topheavy. The entry made a hit with the crowd.

The judges met with large difficulty in determining the winner of third prize. It was finally given to Henry Cote, however, whose canoe was delightful and dainty as a Japanese garden. The decorations were unique and tasteful and deserved the highest praise. Mr. Cote is, like Mr. Kittredge, a member of the Iroquois club, so that that organization drew $15 out of the decisions, $10 for second prize, and $5 for third.

The other two canoes which ran Mr. Cote a close race for third prize were those representing an automobile and the Ferris wheel.

At the conclusion of the parade the Iroquois club held open house and a large number of guests were entertained.

THE ALDERMEN

Held a Meeting Last Night

AND REFUSED TO CONFIRM THE MAYOR'S APPOINTMENT.

Of Leroy M. Turner to Be Inspector of Milk and Vinegar—Six Traverse Jurors Were Drawn—Petitions for Personal Injuries Referred to Committee.

The board of aldermen held an afternoon meeting last night and while the meeting was not a very important one, quite a lot of business was gone through. The board did not confirm the mayor's appointment of Leroy M. Turner to be the inspector of milk and vinegar. There was a question as to whether or not Mr. Turner was a competent chemist. The following traverse jurors were drawn by Alderman Comerford: Gardner, 12, Hampshire street, clerk; Peter W. Harvey, 21, Ames street, undertaker; Isaac L. Brown, 25, Concord street, janitor; George E. McKelvey, 12, Lincoln street, pattern maker; Frank J. Danahy, 32, State street, plasterer; and Thomas England, 42, Warren street, fishman.

The petition of P. A. Bates, agent of the health board, for an appropriation of $20 for the care of a smallpox patient, was referred to the committee on appropriations.

A petition by Peter J. Brady for damage to machinery was referred to the committee on claims.

The N. E. Tel. & Tel. Co. petitioned for a hearing relative to pole locations at the corner of Wedge and Laurel streets, for relocation of ten poles in Westford street, and Sept. 16 was the date set for the hearing.

James E. Stoughton petitioned for the right to move a building in Midland street, and Sept. 12 was the date set for the hearing on the matter.

James Coughlin and Lester C. Hill gave notice of personal injuries and their petitions were referred to the committee on claims.

The mayor's appointment of Leroy M. Turner to the office of inspector of milk and vinegar was read. Alderman Comerford wanted to know if Mr. Turner is a practical chemist, and Alderman Gray said he understood that Mr. Turner had been a chemist in the laboratory of the C. I. Hood Co. Rule 12 was not suspended, and the appointment will lay on the table under the rule.

The joint order to discontinue street watering in Tenth and Beacon streets was adopted.

A joint resolution to lower the sewer in Linton street a distance of 20 feet to a point opposite the centre of Music Hall avenue, so-called, was adopted.

A resolution to lay a surface water drain in Bulfinch street, the cost to be charged to the appropriation for sewer construction in Westford street, was adopted.

A resolution to lay a pond in Kensington street was adopted.

A petition to change the hours of voting in the city of Lowell to the hours between 8 a. m. and 4 p. m., signed by 10 citizens, was read. Mr. Gray favored the change, because he believed that there was much confusion caused by going to the different hours of voting between primaries and elections. The petition, as an amendment to the original order, was defeated. Adjourned.

JOHN E. REDMOND

Tells What Last Parliament Did for Ireland

DUBLIN, Sept. 2.—At a meeting yesterday of the Central branch of the United Irish league, John Redmond, who presided, dilated upon the importance of the last parliamentary session so far as Ireland was concerned. He considered the Irish university bill one of the greatest emancipating measures of the century, and he should always be proud of his share in its adoption. Ireland, he said, would receive nearly $1,000,000 a year under the old age pensions bill, which would benefit 70,000 people in Ireland. These and other measures were the substantial results of their parliamentary work.

He uttered a warning to the British government, however, that there was still important work to be done in connection with land legislation and the congested districts, failing which the nationalists would not be responsible for the maintenance of peace in Ireland.

A resolution was adopted embodying the customary demand for home rule. A letter was read from Stephen O'Hara, resigning from his position as trustee of the Irish parliamentary fund, on the ground that he is out of sympathy with the policy of the nationalist party, which he accuses of being satisfied to accept whatever crumbs fall from the liberal table.

EUROPEAN BANKERS

Are Greatly Interested in Monetary Conditions in America

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—Senator Daniel, of Virginia, Rep. Vreeland of New York and Rep. Overstreet of Indiana, a subcommittee of the congressional commission appointed to study the banking and monetary systems of Europe, arrived yesterday on the steamship Kronprinz Wilhelm. Speaking of the results of the commission's inquiry abroad, Mr. Vreeland, vice chairman, said:

"The commission was treated with the greatest kindness and cordiality by the great bankers of London. The governor of the Bank of England, and two of his managing directors, came before the commission and submitted to the workings of their systems. The managers of four or five of the great joint stock banks in London also came before the commission and gave freely and in great detail all the information desired."

"The commission went thoroughly into the question of branch banking, of reserves, of workings of their currency system and other important details relating to the subject."

"The bankers of Great Britain are greatly interested in the American situation, because the money panic in the United States of October, 1907 put a very severe strain upon the Bank of England and the great banks of London. Similar interest in our monetary conditions exists also in Berlin and Paris."

"The sub-committee, consisting of myself, visited Paris. The governor of the Bank of France gave the commission a whole afternoon in answering all questions asked concerning the French system, and particularly that of the great national bank. We found that both the English and French bankers are thoroughly satisfied with their banking and currency systems."

"Senator Aldrich, chairman of the commission and Prof. Andrews of Harvard, who has been employed by the commission, are now in Berlin, getting information along the same lines as that secured in London and Paris.

"The commission could have put in another month in Europe to great advantage. We have so far obtained only the opinions of the banking side of the question. We found the bankers in the country districts thoroughly satisfied with the system, but we must still secure information as to how their systems are viewed by those outside of the banking business, the merchants, manufacturers and the great masses of people. We also intend to take up thoroughly the banking system of Scotland and Canada, as the systems of these countries have been looked upon with much favor by many Americans."

"It was the desire of the commission to make its report a mine of exact information upon monetary matters. It does not follow that a system which may be thoroughly satisfactory in a country like France or England would be best adapted to the United States, with its great expanse of territory and its enormous and increasing business. No attempt will be made to frame a measure along these lines to present at the coming short session. It is probable some recommendations will be made as to a revision of our administrative banking laws. For example, a more efficient examination of national banks. Beyond this nothing will be attempted."

"The commission gave special attention to the workings of the postal savings banks of England and France. The bankers of Paris gave us one bit of information which was something of a surprise to us, that is, that at least four hundred millions of dollars is hoarded by the people of France that is not deposited in banks."

TRAINS CRASHED

Rear End Collision on B. & M., at Andover Last Night

ANDOVER, Sept. 2.—A train on the western division of the Boston & Maine railroad crashed into the rear end of another train just north of the passenger station here last night. That the latter was in motion undoubtedly saved the lives of many passengers. Several were badly shaken up, but only one, Dennis Lane of Haverhill, had to be attended by a physician and he was able to proceed to his home later in the evening. His face was cut some by falling glass and he was badly shaken up.

The second train is a regular passenger from Boston, due at Andover just before 8 o'clock and was in charge of Conductor Joseph Douby of Boston. The other was an extra, consisting of 14 empty pullman cars, and was in charge of Conductor John Woolledge of Boston.

The passenger train made the stop at Andover and was just pulling out of the station when the accident occurred. Conductor Douby claims that he had a brakeman out signaling any following train, but on account of a curve the signal was not seen in time to prevent the collision. The rear car was badly damaged and had to be abandoned and the locomotive on the extra sustained considerable damage, but not enough to put it out of commission.

The fourth round, where Langford's stock was away up on infighting, some of his kidney blows being more than effective. Jeannette stood his punishment well and for a brief period in the third round he hammered and rushed Langford to the ropes, but he was not able to take advantage of any opportunity and Langford easily got back at every call of the bell and won by a big margin on points.

LIGHT ARTILLERY

Police Department Orders Five Dangerous Weapons

In another column of The Sun today appears an advertisement from the purchasing agent's office, at city hall, calling for bids for furnishing two Remington-Union Automatic Loading Guns and three Colt's Automatic Pistols, Calibre .38, Hammerless.

These pistols and guns are for the police department to experiment with in capturing yeggmen and other malefactors.

Just how five guns are going to be evenly divided among 30 men is somewhat of a mystery, and the question as to which officers will be allowed to carry the new destroyers has not been answered.

If the inspectors are given the weapons then same day when they are making a tour of Middlesex street pawnshops, armed to the teeth, the patrolmen on the Wigglesworth route, armed with a 38-cent popgun will probably sit up a nest of yeggmen and will be forced to hide until the inspectors get there with the light artillery.

It is suggested that the police department have a general target practice, and the five men making the best records be allowed to carry the new guns.

DUTCH REPLY TO VENEZUELA

PRIME MINISTER

Urges a Strong Navy for Australia

MELBOURNE, Sept. 2.—Speaking at the dinner tendered to Rear Admiral Sperry and the senior officers of the American battleship fleet at the royal yacht club tonight Alfred Deakin, the prime minister, said:

"The appearance of the American fleet indicates that it is on no holiday cruise. Its visit marks for us no casual adventure for this invitation was given in a spirit of deepest earnestness after sober consideration, and the concession made by the American government in sending the fleet here is perhaps the most generous made in recent times by one nation to another. The American battleships show the last word in the art of naval construction and the lesson to Australia is that as America was unable to take a first place in the world until the country had a first class navy, because it was until then only able to protest verbally against outside injustice and injury so Australia cannot be content to ultimately accept defense at any other hands than its own and should begin provision for its own navy in a modest way."

INSANE PERSON STARTED FIRES

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—Eight fires bearing every sign of incendiarism kept the firemen and police busy on the upper East Side early today, in a district where a score of suspicious fires have occurred in the last few days. The police asserted that all the blazes were started by some insane person with a mania for starting fires.

HATHAWAY'S THEATRE

Here are a few of the tributes conferred upon "The Order of the Bath," which is one of the headline attractions at Hathaway's theatre this week:

"Pleasing and capitally acted."—New York Dramatic Mirror.

"If Rosina Vokes had the luck in her lifetime to play it she would have esteemed herself fortunate."—Morning Telegraph.

"A vehicle which should give them the best position on any vaudeville bill."—Cincinnati Post.

Another attraction worthy of the top line anywhere is the George Honan's production of "A Night with the Poole." It is beautifully staged. The rest of the bill is made up of Brown and Navarro, "Pagani's Ghost," Rice and Herman.

William Court, Seymour and Nestor and the Hathaways.

Performance of this bill will be given every afternoon and evening during the rest of the week.

STAR THEATRE

Amateurs last night attracted the usual large crowd and many were turned away because there was no room. Tonight many new amateurs will be seen that did not appear last night and it is expected another large crowd will be in attendance.

Dumont and Ayotte have one of the prettiest dancing acts seen for many a day and they get much praise for their good work. "By the Old Oak Tree, at Home" is a tuneful little ballad that is much liked.

was customary when a hearing was given on charges preferred against an officer to give the officer the choice of a public or private hearing.

Lawyer William H. Bent, who appeared for Patrolman Hersey, informed the board that before proceeding with the hearing he had some preliminary motions to make. He then read the complaint against Patrolman Hersey, charging that on Saturday evening, Aug. 22, that officer assaulted and brutally treated, and with George Massala, and took him in the patrol wagon to the police station, where he passed the night. Further, the complaint charged that Officer Hersey used profane and indecent language, and threatened the defendant; and that he was guilty of neglect of duty in his failure to arrest a man named Donovan, who had held up and robbed the defendant of certain papers.

The complaint of Elijah Terlan is the same, except that the charge of threatening is omitted.

My Bent moved that the complaint be dismissed, alleging that the charges are frivolous, and on the ground that they are not verified by the oath of the complainant; that the charges are vague and indefinite, and are not accompanied by specifications; and that if of the police board's opinion, to prove its contention that the board has no authority to try an officer under the charges as framed, instead of as they are not verified by oath of the complainant, he would merely be the form of an acknowledgment of a deed. Also, he said, copies of the charges have been furnished the defendant, but there are no specifications.

Daniel J. Donahue, who appeared for Patrolman Donovan, asked that the charges against his client be dismissed on the grounds as covered by Lawyer Bent.

Dennis J. Murphy, counsel for the complainants, argued that the statement quoted had nothing to do with the case at this stage of the proceedings; that it merely refers to the rights of the officer, after a hearing and been given. He said that the charges were sufficiently specific to allow the men to make their defense. He further added that he did not intend to furnish defense for his brother lawyers.

The board considered the matter and decided to defer the hearing and confer with counsel with a view to determining a line of action that would be satisfactory to all concerned.

G. A. R. PARADE

Great Demonstration Took Place in Toledo Today

Candidate Taft Among Those Who Reviewed the Parade—Ex-Prisoners of War Took a Prominent Part in Demonstration

TOLEDO, O., Sept. 2.—With flags flying, bands playing, crew cheering and a bright sky overhead, veterans of the Grand Army of the Republic for the forty-second time marched through the streets of an encampment city today. At the official reviewing stand where stood William H. Taft, republican candidate for president, Governor Harris, Senator Furber, Mayor Brand Whitlock and many other notables, the colors were dipped and each department commander joined Commander-in-Chief Burton in the stand. The parade being the leading feature of the encampment, many posts timed their arrival for that event and the crowd of visitors was augmented by thousands during the night. The day had been proclaimed a holiday by the mayor and the majority of the business places as well as all public offices were closed.

The long and wearing delay at various points of mobilization while waiting for the proper place to fall in discouraged some of the more feeble veterans and they joined the spectators. It was well towards 11 o'clock when the van of the parade marched past the reviewing stand where they were saluted with a bombardment of flowers for which surprise the women of Toledo had been preparing for some days. They emerged from the floral shower to be greeted by an immense human flag made up of nearly three thousand children, who in their dresses of red, white and blue swayed their bodies so that the emblem seemed to sway as in a breeze. The old soldiers saluted the picture with many a wave of hat or hand and hummed as they marched the patriotic songs the children sang.

First in line came a squad of mounted police followed by the marshal of the parade, W. M. McMaken and his staff. Next was a brass band followed by Commander-in-Chief Burton under escort of the Toledo post and past commander-in-chief and invited guests in carriages. In the order given following came the posts of the various states in the order of seniority: Illinois, Wisconsin, Pennsylvania, New York, New Jersey, Maine, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, New Hampshire and Vermont, department of the Potomac, Virginia and North Carolina, Maryland, Nebraska, Michigan, Iowa, Indiana, Colorado and Wyoming, Kansas, Delaware, Minnesota, Missouri, Oregon, Kentucky, West Virginia, South Dakota, Washington and Alaska, Arkansas, New Mexico, Utah, Tennessee, Louisiana and Mississippi, Florida, Texas, Montana, Idaho, Arizona, Georgia and South Carolina, Alabama, North Dakota, Oklahoma and Ohio. Then came the Association of Ex-Prisoners of War and the battle-flag division. At the rendezvous points of the various departments coffee and sandwiches were served to the waiting veterans, and those who desired to do so were allowed to carry away the cups as souvenirs.

Long before the parade started the streets were packed with humanity to a degree which made it almost impossible to move along the sidewalks. Every window along the profusely decorated streets was filled. Local newspapers estimate that including the veterans and their women folk there were 15,000 in the city.

Illinois with the large representation had the other departments eight abreast.

Tendered Reception by L'Association Catholique

And Presented With Valuable Gifts for Altar—Fr. Ronan Will Be Presented a Chalice

A farewell reception was tendered to Rev. Victor Viaud, O. M. I., who leaves St. Joseph's parish next Sunday to become assistant rector of the new parish of Notre Dame-de-Lourdes by L'Association Catholique, of which he has been chaplain for the past four years, in C. M. A. C. hall, last evening.

President Homer L. P. Turcotte, presided over the exercises and nearly 200 members were present. Rev. Fr. Dubreuil, O. M. I., rector of Notre Dame-de-Lourdes, and Rev. Fr. Quillette, O. M. I., who takes Fr. Viaud's place as chaplain of L'Association Catholique, accompanied Fr. Viaud in the hall.

President Turcotte paid an eloquent tribute to the retiring chaplain and spoke words of welcome to his successor. He then presented Fr. Viaud with a beautiful gold chalice, two gold candlesticks and a sanctuary gong. Fr. Viaud responded gracefully and told of his pleasant relations with the society. Rev. Fr. Dubreuil and Quillette also spoke after Fr. Viaud, as well as Henry Achin, Jr., J. E. I. Michaud, Joseph Provost, Eugene G. Roussin, Joseph L. Lamoureux and Henry Achin, Sr. There were readings also by George E. Poirier and Henri Daigle. Refreshments were served, and the pleasant affair closed with cheers for Rev. Fr. Viaud, Dubreuil and Quillette.

The committee in charge consisted of Henry Barry, chairman; Emil Morin, Eugene Savard, Arthur Genest, Adeline Pelletier, Arthur Lussier, Henry Achin, Jr., Joseph Richard, Ed. Bergeron. Mr. Barry was the chief organizer of the affair.

Mayor Farnham will not again be a candidate for mayor. Has he seen the writing on the wall?

The prospects for the success of the great auto race are daily improving. It will undoubtedly be one of the greatest races ever held in this country.

Judging from their pictures as printed in the newspapers, Mr. Bryan and Henry D. Clayton, who manages his campaign, can hardly be distinguished apart. They are moreover great admirers of each other, but no doubt when seen in the flesh there is no such close resemblance between the two men.

THE VERMONT SLUMP.

Vermont's republican slump has cast consternation into the republican camp. The plurality is the smallest since 1892, when Cleveland was elected. This will be taken as an indication that Bryan will be elected.

In 1892 the republican plurality was 21,669; in 1896, it was 40,490; in 1900, the figures were 29,719; in 1904, it reached the normal republican majority of 30,682, but in the present year the decline to 28,000, a decrease of eight per cent. is regarded as an ill omen for the G. O. P.

BANKS AND THEIR METHODS.

The banks of the country in their relation to business have been aptly likened to the heart and arteries of the human body.

That simile was well applied, no doubt, while prosperity reigned, and the banks were ready to let out their money on good security.

Of late, however, it would seem that if the banks represent the business heart, we are suffering from a species of heart disease that might be termed the closing up of the ventricles and the consequent lack of circulation in the arteries.

Banks have it in their power to make business good or to keep things at a standstill. If they loan money on good security to legitimate enterprises they will help business. If they refuse to do this and close up their coffers as if fearing some financial crisis that would swamp their treasuries, they will injure business.

The banker who wants to do all in his power to help business will not refuse credit when the security is all right. He will, however, refuse credit beyond the borrower's apparent ability to pay and in this he is right.

But it is a well known fact that some banks during the recent panic and money stringency were guilty of the worst kind of hoarding. They have not yet quite recovered from their scare and as a result it has been very difficult to get loans for building purposes, while many manufacturing industries have found great difficulty in getting the money to pay their help. All this is due to the disposition of the banks to guard against possible contingencies in the nature of "runs" or other financial crises that might call for prompt payment of deposits.

The banks considered first and last their own interests while some of them took what appears to be unnecessary precautions against failure.

It is time that the banks loosened up and displayed more confidence in the future of business. While they hang back business will move very slowly towards the normal.

By some it is asserted that the most timid bank is the safest, but there is such a thing as excessive timidity. The system of currency, however, is at fault when it happens that the banks are afraid or unable to give out money enough to supply the ordinary needs of business. The element of elasticity has not been provided, and until this fault is properly remedied, we presume it is useless to blame the banks for taking unusual precautions for their own safety.

It is gratifying to know that the business depression has wiped out many dishonest banks throughout the country, banks that were not above using their power to squeeze business men in order to take over the property of the latter at much less than its actual value. Unfortunately, however, some highly reputable banks were forced to the wall through a variety of adverse circumstances.

Lowell has been fortunate in passing through the financial crisis without any bank failures. Her banks have at all times been amply able to meet all their obligations.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

Lowell will go some on Labor day.

You can't help loving the fellow who tries to minimize your faults.

That German code is rather hard to interpret on the subject of marriage, particularly that section which provides that, in case both parties do not belong to the same country, the marriage shall be governed as to each, by the law of the state to which he or she belongs. On that principle, if the man was a German and the woman were French, the man might be married to the woman all right, but the woman might not be necessarily married to the man.

A preacher from New Zealand has been telling men in India to tattoo their wives on the chin, so as to make them immune to the divorce habit. That might have the desired effect, if feasible, but what would the wives be doing while the tattooing was in process?

The young man and the girl were standing outside the front door having a final chat after his evening call. He was leaning against the doorpost, talking in low tones. Presently the young lady looked round to discover her father in the doorway clad in a dressing gown.

"Why, father, what in the world is the matter?" she inquired.

"John," said the father, addressing himself to the young man, "you know I have never complained about your staying late, and I'm not going to complain of that now; but for goodness sake stop leaning against the bell push and let the rest of the family get some sleep."

Comparatively few of our public men now wear beards. Of the seven candidates for president this year six have smooth-shaven countenances and Mr. Taft wears only a mustache. Out of the members of congress who were photographed some time ago, only to cultivated whiskers. The fashion of beardness is now also finding a steady increase of favor among the American rank and file.

The Japanese tattooer, in his tent on the beach, shook his head.

"No, miss, I really wouldn't," he said, "if this young man should die or go back on you, it wouldn't be pleasant to have his initials on your arm. If A. R. L. came to die, how would you explain those letters to C. C. S?"

"That's so," said the girl. "I hadn't

COAL TALK

The best coal in the world is mined by Uncle Sam, and I have the choicest output of his digging energy. My success in the coal business rests largely, of course, on the quality of the fuel supplied by my yard, but coal cleanliness—proper screening—prompt delivery and courteous attention have much to do with it.

Place your orders with me now at summer prices, and have them delivered when and where you want them. Mail and telephone orders receive immediate attention.

thought of that. Suppose you make it a blue butterfly.

"Much better," said the Oriental. "You see, with men it doesn't so much matter. Dear, dear, I've seen men with as many as five or thirty girls' initials and full names tattooed all over them. But in the case of a girl—"

"Yes, by all means, make it a blue butterfly," she said, very firmly.

The following is inscribed on an Elks card that I picked up on the steps leading to the city hall, yesterday:

WHAT THEY ARE.

The Elks are not an insurance or assessment organization. They are the Clan whose blood circulates. Their cardinal virtues are to aid the sick, bury the dead, and bury sunshine into the dark places. They are not snobs—simply disturbers of practical Christianity. There are no Elks in Potter's Fields or County Almshouses. They live by the way and lend unto the Lord, for they give unto the poor. Their mission is to do good. There are no hungry Elks.

The faults of our brothers we write upon the sands; Their virtues upon the tablets of love and memory.

The campaign orator is a wholesome lesson in loyalty, says Appletons. To him there is nothing so great as this splendid country, nothing so beautiful as the starry flag that waves "on high," nothing so inspiring as the words of "The Star Spangled Banner"—none of which he can repeat.

He calls the army and the navy the "bulwarks of our liberty," and the soldiers "our gallant boys in blue." It doesn't matter much that they wear brown these days. "Blue" sounds better, and, besides, if he were to speak of the "boys in brown," some one might think he meant our distinguished fellow-near-citizens, the Philistines, or worse still, the gallant soldiers of Brownsville.

To hear him speak one would naturally infer that he had been one of the first to enlist in the late war with Spain, and one is somewhat surprised to learn that he was busy saving the country here at home during those troublous times. He was one of those who sat on the fence and yelled "Give 'em hell, boys!" when the soldiers marched by.

PEOPLE OF NOTE

A coming wedding will be that of Miss Edith Holt of New York city, the daughter of Henry Holt, the publisher, and one of the incorporators of the New York Association for the Blind, and Dr. Joseph Colt Bloodgood of Baltimore, associate professor of surgery at Johns Hopkins university, one of the best known surgeons in the country.

Professor J. B. E. Jonas, professor of German at Brown university, has gone abroad to spend his sabbatical year in study and research in Germany. Professor Jonas expects to spend most of the winter in research among certain valuable manuscripts in the Royal Library at Berlin. He will make a special study of the poems of the middle high German of the period of 1350, a body of literature which he says has unfortunately been little exploited thus far. He expects to make extensive extracts from these manuscripts with a view to their ultimate publication. Professor Jonas will also study in the University of Berlin, and spend some time in travel among the northern states of Germany.

Rex Beach is back in New York after his summer of hunting in the far north. In witness of the affliction that attacked his eyes and frightened his friends through exaggerated reports, Mr. Beach is wearing blue-glasses, but he has nothing but cheerful words for the trip and what it brought him. There were more than a few big bears and a good bit of rare game, and the rest of the story is yet to be told.

The membership of the British Westway conference this year included a cabinet minister, a peer, ten baronets and knights, nine members of the house of commons, the bishops of Hull and Beverly and the Dean of York visited the conference; the archbishops of Canterbury and York sent greetings; the lord mayor of London and other mayors listened to the conference sermon.

Professor Rufus I. Cole of Johns Hopkins university has declined an invitation to succeed Dr. George Dock in the chair of medicine at the University of Michigan. It was said that Dr. Cole was to become director of the new Rockefeller Research hospital in New York City.

LOST HIS FAMILY

SALEM MAN ADVERTISES FOR THEM AT WATERBURY, CONN.

WATERBURY, Conn., Sept. 2.—When George Crosby of Salem, Mass., landed here Monday he thought he'd have nothing to do but find his wife visiting with friends, but he forgot their names and address. Yesterday afternoon he inserted an advertisement to find his family, letting his mail go to Box D 18. Mr. Crosby said it was an embarrassing position, this losing a wife and several children, and it was especially important that he go to New York in the morning and that he see her before he went, as he might not come back for months.

Nearly a dozen people are now aiding him and he is certain of success in the morning before the 11 o'clock train he would like to go on leaves.

TALK OF ALLIANCE

With China Has Aroused Jealousy of Japan

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—Discussion in London, Paris and New York as to conditions that might arise in the event of an alliance between the United States and China seem to have been taken seriously in the Orient. Recent dispatches from Peking hint at the possibility of Minister Wu Ting Fang being recalled because of remarks attributed to him concerning an alliance. Baron Takahira of Japan visited President-Roosevelt at Oyster Bay, and is said to have discussed the alliance talk and the presence of the United States fleet in the Pacific.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

AND THIS FROM SHERMAN.

Fall River Globe: "Mr. Bryan," says Mr. Sherman, "insults the people when he says they do not rule." But what was Mr. Sherman doing to the people when he was acting as Uncle Joe's chore boy and assisting his boss in thwarting their wishes. Adding injury to insult apparently.

MR. CLEVELAND'S ADVICE.

Worcester Post: "What is the best principle and what the best policy to give the democratic party new life?"

"As a general proposition I might answer this question by saying that in my opinion this could be most surely brought about by a return to genuine democratic doctrine and a close adherence to the democratic policies which in times past gave our party success and benefited our people."

"To be more specific in my reply, I should say that more than ever just at this time the democratic party should display honest and sincere conservatism, a regard for constitutional limitations and a determination not to be swept from our moorings by temporary clamor or spectacular exploitation."

"Our people need rest and peace and reassurance, and it will be quite in line with true democracy and successful policy to impress upon our fellow-countrymen the fact that democracy still stands for those things."

Grover Cleveland's last public utterance.

ENFEBLING SCHOOL METHODS.

Fall River Herald: The Boston Transcript says the enfeeblement of educational methods is due to the increasing number of women teachers and the passing of the New England schoolmaster, adding "less kindergarten and more men." The way to rectify it is to provide salaries and raise salaries to men's size.

WANT TO BE LET ALONE.

New York World: "We still have hope," said Theodore P. Shonis, president of the Interborough and of the Clover Leaf, Chicago, and Alton, speaking of the railroads, "that we are going to be let alone and allowed to run our own business." That will depend largely upon the railroads themselves. They will not be let alone as they have been doing for many years, because the people demand a change for the better, voluntary or enforced.

THE MAN WHO SHIRKS.

Lawrence Eagle: Those who are ever ready to do their part in the work of the world—whether it be industrial, benevolent or religious—the shirker is a very unattractive person. The shirker is the one who fails to do his work as he knows it ought to be done; who sets another to do his share of his work and claims full time and wages for both. The shirker then is found in the one who does not do the little and the little that duty calls for in his work; the one who, with jungle gifts and abundant material means does not respond to the voice of duty when it calls in unmistakable tones; the one who leaves duty in small things or great, with full knowledge that he ought to do the things that he leaves undone whether small or great. The shirker, well, he is just a shirker.

Woman Was Preparing Meal When

SANFORD, Me., Sept. 2.—Through the explosion of an alcohol stove Mrs. Marion Hamilton of this town was so dangerously burned that Dr. S. C. Hill, her physician, says he does not think she will recover.

Mrs. Hamilton has roomed in Fogg's block, and was preparing her breakfast when the stove exploded, setting her dress alight. She rushed into the office of the New England Telephone & Telegraph Company all ablaze. The night operator put out the burning clothing with water and quilts, but not until Mrs. Hamilton had been severely burned on her back, arms and legs. Mrs. Hamilton's brother-in-law, S. K. DEER ISLE, Me., Sept. 2.—Seven summer people out of a party of 10 were drowned by the capsizing of a 35-foot sloop in Penobscot bay off this island yesterday.

The bodies of Lottie Kellogg and Miss Evans were recovered. There was some hope that Mr. Hutchins had been saved. When last seen he was making a brave struggle through the choppy seas toward Barron island, nearby. A boat was sent from this town last night in the effort to locate him, if possible.

With Capt. Samuel Haskell the party of gay summer people started out yesterday afternoon for a sail in Penobscot bay. It was drawing near the close of the vacation season for some of them and they had planned this as their last outing together.

The wind was fresh from the southwest, kicking up a good sea and promising exhilarating sport for the party of merrymakers. The sloop was of the "open" variety, that is, it had no deck forward and no cabin, as many of the small Maine boats have, and it contained no ballast, as the party of 10 weighed the boat down quite heavily and Capt. Haskell, an experienced navigator in these waters, thought the human ballast sufficient.

The party had scarcely been gone an hour before the wind freshened up, heeling the sloop well over and dashing the spray upon the occupants, much to their glee. There was no thought of danger until the afternoon was drawing to a close, when Capt. Haskell decided that the wind was too heavy for his boat and the sea too choppy, so he brought the boat around and started a tack homeward.

All of the party were perched high up on the weather side, as the sloop cut through the waves with the water almost coming over the gunwales on the lee side when Capt. Haskell gave a shout of warning that he was going to tack, and then threw over the tiller. Just at this moment the boat rose high up on a wave, exposing her to the full brunt of the wind. An unusually heavy gust struck her and in a twinkling the sloop was over on her beam ends and the party of 10 was in the water.

For one brief moment it was every one for one's self. Capt. Haskell, however, took in the situation in one quick glance. He had been clinging to the sheet and his tenacious hold had not been loosened by the sudden plunge into the ice-cold waters of the Maine coast. He saw that the boat's tender was still right side up, and shouting to Prof. Crawley and Henry Evans, who were nearest to him, he dived so at the same time himself, doing so at the same time himself. Prof. Crawley, however, still clinging to the overturned sloop, looking for his wife, while Evans was trying vainly to locate his sister.

In the meantime Capt. Haskell had gained the tender and clambered aboard. Cutting it loose from the overturned sloop he picked up the oars and, bringing the boat up near Crawley and Evans, helped them aboard, persuading them that the only way they could help the women was from the rowboat. But even then the women were beyond help. Weighted down by their water-soaked clothes and chilled through to the marrow by the cold waters, they had been unable to keep themselves afloat. Some of them had grabbed the person nearest them by the neck and in some instances they had gone down together, clasped in each other's arms.

The three men in the tender found that they were almost as incapable of giving assistance in their boat as they had been in the water. The wind was too high and the sea too rough for them to handle the small boat. They were in grave danger themselves of being thrown once more into the water.

The upset, however, had been seen from Eagle island, not far from the accident, and as soon as possible a sloop was sent out to pick up the survivors. They reached the tender just in time and pulled the three exhausted men aboard. Of the rest of the party but two were in sight and the boat was headed for them. They were the bodies of Lottie Kellogg and Miss Evans. They were unconscious, and although the rescuers worked vigorously over them all efforts to restore life failed.

The boat was well back on its way to the island before the fate of Hutchins was recalled. Then some one remembered that he had seen Hutchins swimming strongly for Barron island. It was too late then to change the boat's course, for by that time the young man had either gone to the bottom or had managed to reach the rocks, and the survivors already in the boat were urgently in need of attention.

Hutchins was a student in the Bangor Theological seminary, and had been filling one of the pulpits on Deer Isle for the summer. A boat was sent to hunt for him as soon as the survivors reached land.

The boat returned unsuccessful last evening. It is now practically certain that Hutchins sank before he could reach the rocks of the island. It was a long swim against wind and sea, and encumbered as he was by his clothes, Hutchins' chance of reaching safety was exceedingly slim. A lookout was kept up and down the coast for bodies.

A BILLERICA MAN.
Jason Herbert Hutchins, who lost his life in the drowning accident off Deer Isle yesterday, was a member of the senior class of the Bangor Theological seminary and considered an exceptionally brilliant student. He was 26 years old and engaged to Miss Dorothea Beach, only daughter of Pres. David Nelson Beach of the seminary, now with the family in their summer home at Kineo.

His home was in Billerica, Mass., where he leaves a father and mother. He was some time in the employ of Fields & Cowles of Boston. He was acting as pastor of the church at Sunset, a settlement on Deer Isle, for the summer.

AN INDIAN BOY

SERVING LIFE SENTENCE GETS PARDON

WASHINGTON, Sept. 2.—The President has ordered the pardon of William Judge, a Cherokee Indian boy serving a life sentence at Fort Leavenworth for murder.

Charlie Sunday, another Cherokee boy was Judge's rival, and Caroline Goings, the belle of the Indian village in the territory, was the object of their affections. Sunday's body was fished out of the Illinois river, and the physicians said that certain finger marks around his neck proved that he was strangled to death. A number of witnesses testified that they had heard Judge declare he would "do away with Sunday," and the girl in the case swore that he had assured her that she would never see Sunday again.

All this happened early in 1902. Since then a number of the witnesses have experienced a change of heart, and Judge's friends have produced a profusion of perjury sufficient to convince the President and attorney-general that the prisoner is entitled to a pardon.

HOUSE ENTERED

Thieves Got Away With Silverware

Thieves have been at work in this city of late and while many breaks have been reported to the police, the public has heard little of the burglaries that have been committed. A couple of weeks ago the residence of Fred B. Hayward of 7 South street was broken into and considerable valuables, including silverware worth $200, taken.

Mr. Hayward, who is the manager of the M. Steiner & Sons Co. in this city, with his family, was in Beachmont, and his nearest neighbor was also away. When Mr. Hayward returned to this city Sunday night he discovered that his silver, including costly wedding presents of tableware and ornaments, had been taken by thieves, who effected an entrance through a parlor window.

Not a single silver article on the lower floor of the house remained to the family. Mr. Hayward, who had never in the past taken unusual precautions with his property, had left the silverware in its accustomed place and the thieves had evidently found no trouble in discovering it.

Every drawer in any desk or sideboard on the lower floor of the house had been ransacked, but peculiarly enough the upper floors had apparently not been made. It is probable that the burglars were frightened away by some noise before they had an opportunity to search the upper stories.

Mr. Hayward immediately notified the police, and the latter have been working on various clues, but up to the present time they have met with but little success.

CHANGES COLOR

Woman Alternates Between Black and White

INDIANAPOLIS, Sept. 2.—Mrs. America Massey of this city is apparently undergoing a third change from white to black. She was born a colored slave in Bowling Green, Ky., in 1846, and lived there till 1896, when she came to Indiana. She is, or was naturally a rather dark mulatto.

In 1884 she began to turn white, and in 1885 she underwent a transformation complete. By 1888 she was black again, the return to her original color being more rapid than the change from black to white. Shortly after this she began to change again, and soon became perfectly white.

Early in the 90s she again turned dark. When she came here in 1896, she was becoming white very rapidly, and the transformation has remained till within the past few days, when two dark spots appeared on one side of her face and one on the other side. She recognized these as the forerunners of the change, but says that it has not been preceded by the itching sensation she experienced preceding the other two changes from black to white and from white to black. She says that she was examined by many physicians in Kentucky when she was undergoing the first change, but none of them could advance any reasonable theory for the transformation.

A PROTEST

AGAINST THE PRESENCE OF THAW IN JAIL

ALBANY, N. Y., Sept. 2.—In a report submitted to the state commission of prisons yesterday, Secretary McLaughlin protests against the further confinement in the Dutchess county jail at Poughkeepsie of Harry K. Thaw. The report among other things says that Thaw's presence in the jail demoralizes the discipline of the institution.

The report says in part: "He (Thaw) has been held in this jail for several months pending the outcome of litigation, which looks now as though it might be interminable. His presence in this jail is embarrassing to the sheriff and objectionable on many accounts. The sheriff has no room for him except in the padded cell, even this he needs for temporary uses, and it would be an entirely unfit place in which to confine a man for months. Having been adjudged insane with homicidal tendencies, the sheriff would not be justified in confining him with the other prisoners.

The result is that the sheriff has to give him an entire corridor, with the thirteen cells adjacent, in the principal jail for men. He needs this room for his other prisoners. The want of it makes it impossible for him to properly classify the regular prisoners.

He consumes a large amount of the time of the jailer in escorting him to his cell, and to the kitchen, and to other places to attend to his needs before the court and before referees, time which the jailer needs for his other duties. There is a good deal of public talk that some of these hearings are on fake suits, instituted by his friends to give him these outings.

His presence here demoralizes the discipline of the institution. He is in the corridor, not in the cell. He has all the fixtures and paraphernalia of a business office. He orders his food from the hotel, which has to be brought to him three times a day. Still people send him bouquets of flowers. He is allowed the use of a whole corridor, constituting one-quarter of the entire principal jail for men, while the other prisoners are crowded, two in a cell frequently. All these things are under the observation of the other prisoners and create dissatisfaction and a belief that the men with money constitute a separate class even in a prison.

These things produce an unhealthy feeling of discontent and rebellion among the other prisoners. "It would seem that a person who had been adjudged insane but who is now conducting proceedings for his discharge on the ground of recovery, should be detained in an institution where he would be under the observation of experts, who could advise the court of his changed mental condition, if it has occurred."

LOST HIS MONEY ENGINEER DEAD DESPONDENT MEN

Leal Gave it Up to "Friends"

BOSTON, Sept. 2.—The police of Boston and vicinity are looking for two Italians, who yesterday afternoon succeeded in relieving a fellow countryman, Ernesto F. Leal of 175 Belleville avenue, New Bedford, of $250, after the three had become "acquainted" on Water street, Charlestown.

Leal had arrived in Boston, intending to see the sights and later to pay a visit to his native land. He was on his way toward the navy yard, intending to visit the steamship wharf, when the two strangers showed up, and after the formalities which have been used in more than 100 cases of "con game" this year by Italians in this section, Leal was impressed with the necessity of handing over his money to its new friends for safekeeping.

Shortly after doing so, Leal reported to the officers of station 15. The "friends" are about 30 years old, 5 feet 6 inches tall, wore dark clothes and soft hats. One weighed about 130 and the other about 150 pounds.

Killed When Engine Jumped a Frog

WALTHAM, Sept. 2.—Engineer Matthew Henderson was killed when his engine attached to freight No. 222, bound from Springfield to Boston on the Pittsburg division of the Boston & Maine R. R. Co. jumped a frog in taking a switch from the main line to the Watertown branch last night. The engine plunged over on its side and Henderson was frightfully scalded and crushed.

In the cab with him at the time were Fireman George Fields and Brakeman Joseph Hopkins and George Woodworth. They escaped by jumping.

STILL ALARM

For Fires Set By Children Yesterday.

Children who were left alone in a house in Race street yesterday, connected with some matches and just before for that the firemen had to take a hand. A still alarm was sent in at 11:45 yesterday forenoon and members of hose 8 responded. The children had set fire to a tablecloth in the kitchen. The destruction of the table cloth constituted the damage.

Two Took Their Lives in Boston

BOSTON, Sept. 2.—Two suicides, one by morphine and the other by bleeding, were reported to the police last night. Percy Myers, aged 29 years, was found unconscious from an overdose of morphine in a room on Columbus avenue yesterday afternoon. He died at the Relief hospital.

Dennis Leary, aged 45 years, cut an artery in his arm at his lodgings in the South End and died at the hospital. Despondency is given as the cause of the deed in both cases.

PARDONED CONVICT

Takes His Childhood Chum for His Bride

BARLEVILLE, Okla., Sept. 2.—Emmet Dalton and Mrs. Julia Lewis were married here last night. Only a few months ago Dalton was pardoned from the Kansas penitentiary where he was serving a life sentence for participation in the raid on the Coffeyville bank more than 16 years ago. Julia Lewis is the widow of Ernest Lewis who died in a bloody fight with United States Marshals Keeler and Williams in this city last November.

The romance between Dalton and Julia Lewis began twenty years ago when the latter who was the daughter of "Texas" Johnson, lived with her parents near the Kansas line 15 miles north of Barleville. She and Dalton were about the same age and they rode races practiced shooting with rifles and rode their ponies to all the dances within thirty miles of the Johnson house. While Dalton was hiding from the officers, it is said, the girl cooked his meals and kept him informed of the movements of the pursuers. It was about this time that Dalton was shot while raiding Coffeyville bank with his brother. He was sent to the penitentiary and never saw his former sweetheart until he was released last winter. She wrote to him frequently and spent a good deal of her time working to gain him a pardon.

LOWELL OPERA HOUSE

The Taylor Stock company made its first appearance at the Opera House last evening and was greeted by a large audience. "From Farm to Factory" was the "opener" and it was presented in a very capable manner. The play is based on country life in northern Illinois and shows how a country youth, after many experiences becomes secretary in a large manufacturing concern in Chicago. Harry Moore who played the part of "Toby Moore, Jr." the country boy, made a decided hit. As there was considerable comedy and love making it was well appreciated by the crowd. The specialties were of a high class, and Travelogue's views of the Holy City and Washington, D. C., was the feature of the program.

The company is composed of excellent talent and has a large list of specialties who will participate in the performances this week. This afternoon "Camille" was presented, while "The Hornet's Nest" will be tonight's offering.

JAMES KENNEDY COMPANY.

Next week at the Lowell Opera House the attraction will be the James Kennedy company, the excellence of whose repertoire of plays is well known to all spectators of popular priced melodrama. New plays, new songs and entirely new scenic and electrical equipment are some of the features of this season's production.

THE RED MILL.

Mr. Charles Dillingham's attractions for the current season will include Montgomery and Stone, Fred Scher in a new musical play entitled "The Prince of Denmark," Elsie Jants in "The Slave Princess," Frank Daniels in a new musical offering, Jack & Fulton in a new vehicle, several new plays by George Ade and other authors.

THE SHOEMAKER

Low Welch, the versatile character actor, will be seen in a new play entitled "The Shoemaker," especially written for him by Hal Reid, at the Opera House soon. "The Shoemaker" is said to hold the attention of the audience from start to finish, and mirrors human nature in all of its subtle and truthful phases.

ACADEMY OF MUSIC

The flower matinee and reception at Dixon's Academy of Music yesterday afternoon was a big success, a large audience attending and greeting the players at the conclusion of the performance. The members of the company were warmly congratulated on their fine work and were assured of a prosperous season. On Friday evening the first of a series of amateur nights will be held when a high class amateur performance will be given at the conclusion of the regular performance. Nothing coarse or vulgar will be tolerated and ladies need have no hesitancy in attending. Amateurs desiring an opportunity to appear should apply at the box office before Friday noon. A fair sized audience attended last night's performance and was most favorably impressed with the clever company. Next week the company will appear in J. K. Tillotson's beautiful society melodrama "The Young Wife" which has never been presented in Lowell before. This is not a "common" play of the title "The Wife" but an offering new to Lowell and one of several first-class productions owned by Mr. Dixon which will be presented during the season. The subscription list is still open and is rapidly filling. The Sun presents today a portrait of Victor Browne, leading man, who is making a most favorable impression.

6 O'CLOCK HEAVILY ARMED

Trio of Italians Were Captured by the Lynn Police

LYNN, Sept. 2.—A trio of Italians who claim Eutaw, N. Y., as their home were captured here today and are being held by the police on suspicion that they may know something concerning the many highway robberies in the country heretofore during the past few weeks. All of the men were heavily armed but refused to give the police any information as to their identity. They were captured in a dark alleyway off Chatham street.

All of the men carried 35 calibre revolvers and each had a stiletto while two had knives in their belts. An electric flashlight was discovered in one man's pocket and all of the trio had ammunition for their revolvers. The only explanation that they would give for their presence in the city was that they had been visiting friends. In police court they were held in $500 bonds for a further examination.

ADMIRAL GLASS YACHT PURITAN

Died at Paso Robles, California
Famous Boat Enters
Mercantile Traffic

PASO ROBLES, Cal., Sept. 2.—Rear Admiral Henry Glass, U. S. N., retired, died late yesterday afternoon at a health resort here of heart failure following an operation performed several days ago at his home in Berkeley. Admiral Glass, who was 64 years of age, had been ill for two months and his condition had been regarded as critical for some time.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sept. 2.—The announcement of the passing of the famous old schooner yacht Puritan which in 1883 defeated the American cup in defeating the English challenger Genesta, from the ranks of sporting and pleasure craft to the routine of the packet trade between Providence and the Cape Verde islands, will doubtless be read with interest in the yachting circles of the country. The transaction by which the Puritan enters the mercantile traffic had as the purchaser a representative of the Armstrong Transfer Co., which proposed to use the former ship now rigged as a schooner in the regular Brava passenger and freight business. The Puritan was moored in Boston until last winter when she sailed here and has been inactive since.

WATCHING THE CANOE PARADE AT LAKEVIEW.

Lakeview Last Night

The much talked of canoe parade and illumination was held at Lakeview last night and it proved to be such a success that the fondest anticipations of the most enthusiastic workers were fulfilled. There were about four thousand people in attendance they being lined along the water front and on the spacious plaza surrounding the dance hall.

The decorations about the park and water front, consisting of Japanese lanterns were very pretty, the rays from the lanterns reflecting through the pine trees on the water. In order to keep the spectators in a merry frame of mind the National band, Dick Griffiths, leader, occupied a motor boat and dispensed sweet music. The National quartet rendered vocal selections which were greatly enjoyed.

There were 16 entries in the parade and it could be very plainly seen that many hours of labor must have been spent in fitting out the canoes. The ideas were original and the parade as a whole was unlike the usual run of canoe parades where year after year the same designs are shown. The majority of the entries were members of the Iroquois canoe club, but other clubs and individuals figured.

The judges were representatives of L'Etelle, Courier-Citizen, and The Sun, and it was with difficulty that they were able to determine the prize winners.

The first prize was captured by A. J. Lambert, George Lambert, J. Gagnon and George Melrose, whose feature was a Roosevelt hunting scene. Teddy and a companion were the central figures, both being attired in khaki uniform, sombreros, carried guns and in fact had all the equipment of a hunter. A dog also occupied a prominent position and in fact the smallest detail was not forgotten.

The second prize went to the Iroquois club, whose representative in the winning canoe was Joseph Kittredge. The canoe represented Bunker Hill monument, and considerable ingenuity must have been exercised by Mr. Kittredge in planning the exhibit so that the light craft should not become topheavy. The entry made a hit with the crowd.

The judges met with large difficulty in determining the winner of third prize. It was finally given to Hervey Cote, however, whose canoe was delightful and dainty as a Japanese garden. The decorations were unique and tasteful and deserved the highest praise. Mr. Cote is, like Mr. Kittredge, a member of the Iroquois club, so that that organization drew $15 out of the decisions, $10 for second prize, and $5 for third.

The other two canoes which ran Mr. Cote a close race for third prize were those representing an automobile and the Ferris wheel.

At the conclusion of the parade the Iroquois club held open house and a large number of guests were entertained.

A JAIL SENTENCE

For Man Who Drove Auto Recklessly in Boston

BOSTON, Sept. 2.—A jail sentence for reckless automobile driving was imposed by Judge Murray in the municipal court today upon John T. Fay of 77 East 22nd street, New York. Fay was arrested in Scollay square last night charged with drunkenness and reckless speeding. He was driving his own car, and he had a large amount of money and jewelry about his person. In court today the drunkenness charge was not pressed but on the other charge Judge Murray sentenced Fay to twenty days in jail. Fay appealed and furnished $200 bonds. The courts have almost invariably imposed fines for the offense charged heretofore, but Judge Murray stated that in view of the numerous automobile accidents of late he felt that a jail sentence was necessary as a warning to drivers to be more careful.

ARABS SUSTAINED HEAVY LOSS

PARIS, Sept. 2.—There has been another encounter between French troops and the Arab tribesmen at Boudaib. A despatch from General Bailloud says the Arabs suddenly attacked the French post yesterday afternoon. The hills surrounding the blackhouse swarmed with Moorish warriors on foot and horseback. The French finally beat off the enemy after the Arabs had sustained heavy losses. The French had two men killed.

IN POLICE COURT

Man Charged With Stealing Cattle

HE IMPOUNDED HIS NEIGHBOR'S COWS.

And Claimed Compensation for Having Them—Case Continued—Several Assault Cases Before the Court—Billerica Man Fined for Violating Milk Law.

William Cann was arraigned in police court this morning on a complaint charging him with the larceny of two cows and three calves, the property of Dennis J. O'Brien, of South Chelmsford. The case was a rather peculiar one and Judge Hadley remarked that he was not of the opinion that Mr. Cann did not realize how serious an offense he had committed and owing to this fact the case was continued till tomorrow in order to give the man a chance to return the cattle.

Messrs. Cann and O'Brien live within a quarter of a mile of each other in the quiet little village of South Chelmsford, the land of one adjoining that of the other. Last Saturday morning Mr. O'Brien placed two cows and three calves in a pasture. He fenced and the critics could not get out without human aid. He came to Lowell and when he returned at 8:30 that night he was amazed to find that the cows and calves were missing. He searched every nook and corner of the pasture, but the cattle were nowhere in sight.

Later he was informed that his property was stabled in Mr. Cann's premises, but the latter refused to give up the animals unless Mr. O'Brien would turn over $350 for their care. This Mr. O'Brien refused to do and the result was the hearing in police court this morning.

Mr. O'Brien said that the cows and calves were annoying him and endangering his crops so he locked them up in the barn and thought he was justified in demanding a price for their care. He acknowledged on cross examination that they had done no damage, but he was of the opinion that an ounce of prevention was worth a pound of cure.

The seriousness of the case was laid down by the court and Mr. O'Brien promised to return the cattle.

VIOLATED MILK LAW.

William J. Biggerstaff, of Billerica, was charged with interfering with Frederick S. Marion, of Woburn, a milk inspector, also with violating the milk law by removing the cream from milk. He pleaded guilty and was fined $50 for violating the milk law, while the case of interfering with the officer was placed on the files of the court.

Oscar Jarvis pleaded guilty to being a vagrant and was sent to the state farm.

John Hockey, charged with being drunk, needed a rest and the court sentenced him to 14 days in jail.

A number of cases slated for trial today were continued. The case of John Coskos and Michael Hanna, charged with assault and battery, will be heard on Sept. 8 as will the cases of Diab Miami. The case of Albert Higgins on the same charge, will be heard in court two weeks from today, and William L. Ferris of Braintree, charged with being a common drunkard, will appear before the court next Wednesday. Michael Nolan, charged with assault and battery on Charles John, had his case continued till Friday.

There was one $2 drunk and four drunks were released by the probation officer.

FAMOUS PLACE

Old Meeting House at Block Island Burned

BLOCK ISLAND, R. I., Sept. 2.—A mass of smouldering ruins is all that today marks the spot where for a century the historic old meeting house has stood. A fire during the night completely destroyed the structure and had it not been for the able assistance given the fire brigade by the summer visitors, several other buildings in the immediate vicinity of the church would have been destroyed. Flying sparks from the burning church caused considerable damage to the Central house, Motts grocery store and several other houses and barns.

FARNHAM RETIRES

Mayor Will Not Run for a Third Term

He Declared Himself This Morning and Leaves the Field to McKinley, Brown and Fiske—Is Walsh Looking for Thompson's Job?

Mayor Farnham will not be a candidate for a third term.

It is a fact, for he himself has said it, and brought to know.

His Honor informed a reporter of "The Sun" this morning that after mature deliberation he had decided not to run again but had made no plans as to the future. Mayor Farnham has not named his new private secretary as yet. "I have talked with none in relation to the matter, though there are several applicants," said His Honor.

With Mayor Farnham out of the contest, the republican majority nomination would appear to be between Hon. James McKinley, his neighbor, the Hon. George Brown and the Hon. Josiah Fielding Fiske. Almon G. Walsh has been mentioned for the nomination, but the wise ones say he is playing a deeper game.

Mr. Walsh is one of the several thoughtful original Taft men. He was also a delegate to the republican national convention. He met and became acquainted with the Taft managers, Hon. Butler Ames, the congressman from this district, who heretofore had the naming of the postmasters of the fifth district, was strenuously anti-Taft before the convention. In fact he was accused of stirring up an anti-Taft feeling wherever he went and was further accused of doctoring convention credentials. If Taft is elected president it would be comparatively an easy matter to override the congressman's choice for postmaster. Congressman Ames' choice would be Postmaster Thompson, while the Taft man might be A. G. Walsh. You never can tell what will happen in politics. But, of course, if Mr. Walsh were mayor he couldn't very well be postmaster. But Mr. Walsh has not said that he wants to be mayor and probably will not run.

VESSEL PROBABLY IS LOST

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 2.—The bark Auburndale, coal laden, which sailed from Turks island five weeks ago for this port, is missing, and it is feared that the vessel went down off Cape Hatteras during the West Indian hurricane which swept the coast last month. Captain E. B. Haskell had a crew of nine men.

LATEST RETURNS

Show That Prouty's Plurality Will Reach 29,000

WHITE RIVER JUNCTION, Vt., Sept. 2.—A revised tabulation with the additional returns received today of the vote cast for governor in yesterday's state election with 19 small towns still missing, gives George H. Prouty, republican, 15,313; Quimby, S. Burke, democrat, 13,043; James E. Backus, independent league, 1,929; Eugene Campbell, prohibitionist, 501; and P. H. Dunbar, socialist, 463. The missing towns four years ago gave Bell, republican, 2513 and Porter, democrat, 632, and at an early hour today it was estimated that Prouty's plurality in the state would be about 29,000.

With the 19 towns missing the returns show that the republicans had 71 per cent, the democrats 25 per cent, the independence league 2 per cent, the prohibitionists 1-1-3 per cent, and the socialists two-thirds of one per cent, of the total vote cast. The republican plurality of 29,000 compares favorably with previous years but the republican and democratic votes show a slight falling off from four years ago. The republican decrease amounted to 5 per cent, and the democrats to about 3 per cent. The decrease was surprising in view of the numerous local contests at which the voting was quite heavy. Political leaders were inclined to look upon the returns today as indicating that the voters are somewhat apathetic in regard to national issues but not to a marked degree.

There was considerable interest manifested in the size of the vote of the independence league but it was pointed out that if the vote for Backus came entirely from the democratic party the combined vote of the independence league and the democrats would not have reduced Prouty's plurality below 25,000, the safe figure.

It has been a tradition in Vermont politics that when the republican plurality for governor at the September election preceding that for president falls below 25,000 the democratic ticket won the national contest two months after.

The results of yesterday's election were received by the republican leaders with considerable satisfaction while Lieut. Gov. Prouty expressed himself as highly gratified with the endorsement which he had received at the polls.

Go to Lakeview tomorrow night, band concert.

Police Department Orders Five Dangerous Weapons

In another column of The Sun today appears an advertisement from the purchasing agent's office, at city hall, calling for bids for furnishing two Remington-Union Automatic Loading Guns and three Colt's Automatic Pistols, Calibre 38, Hammerless.

These pistols and guns are for the police department to experiment with in capturing yeggs and other malefactors.

Just how five guns are going to be evenly divided among 200 men is somewhat of a mystery, and the question as to which officers will be allowed to carry the yegg destroyers has not been answered.

If the inspectors are given the weapons then some day when they are making a tour of Middlesex street pawnshops armed to the teeth, the patrolmen on the Winghamville route, armed with a 55-cent pop-gun will probably stir up a nest of yeggs, men and will be forced to hide until the inspectors get there with the light artillery.

It is suggested that the police department have a general target practice, and the five men making the best records not allowed to carry the new guns.

PRIME MINISTER

Urges a Strong Navy for Australia

MELBOURNE, Sept. 2.—Speaking at the dinner tendered to Rear Admiral Sperry and the senior officers of the American battleship fleet at the royal yacht club tonight, Alfred Deakin, the prime minister, said:

"The appearance of the American fleet indicates that it is on no holiday cruise. Its visit marks for us no casual adventure for the invitation was given in a spirit of deepest earnestness after sober consideration, and the concession made by the American government in sending the fleet here is perhaps the most generous made in recent times by one nation to another. The American battleships show the last word in the art of naval construction and the lesson to Australians is that as America was unable to take a first place in the world until the country had a first class navy, because it was until then only able to protect verbally against outside injustice and injury so Australia cannot be content to ultimately accept defense at any other hands than its own and should begin provision for its own navy in a modest way."

HATHAWAY'S THEATRE

Here are a few of the tributes conferred upon "The Order of the Bath," which is one of the headline attractions at Hathaway's theatre this week:

"Pleasing and capital, acted."—New York Dramatic Mirror.

"If Rosina Vokes had the luck in her premiere to play it she would have assigned herself fortune."—Morning Telegraph.

"A vehicle which should give them the best position on any vaudeville bill."—Cincinnati Post.

Another attraction worthy of the top line anywhere is the George Homans' production of "A Night with the Poets." It is beautifully staged. The rest of the bill is made up of Brown and Navarro, "Paganini's Ghost," Rice and Herman.

William Court, Seymour and Nestor and the Harnascope. Performances of this bill will be given every afternoon and evening during the rest of the week.

STAR THEATRE

Amateurs last night attracted the usual large crowd and many were turned away because there was no room. Tonight many new amateurs will be seen that did not appear last night and it is expected another large crowd will be in attendance.

Dumont and Ayotte have one of the prettiest dancing acts seen for many a day and they get much praise for their good work. "By the Old Oaken Bucket House" is a tuneful little ballad that is much liked.

HEARING ON CHARGES

Against Hersey and Donovan Postponed by Request

The hearing of charges preferred against Patrolmen Charles H. Hersey and Daniel G. Donovan, which was scheduled to take place before the police board last night, was postponed, as predicted in yesterday's issue of The Sun. The date of the hearing will be decided by the board.

When the meeting was called to order the court room was well filled with people. Chairman Stearns announced that it was customary when a hearing was given on charges preferred against an officer to give the officer the choice of a public or private hearing.

Lawyer William H. Bent, who appeared for Patrolman Hersey, informed the board that before proceeding with the hearing he had some preliminary motions to make. He then read the complaint against Patrolman Hersey, charging that on Saturday evening, Aug. 22, that officer assaulted and roughly treated, and without just cause handcuffed the defendant, George Massalin, and took him in the patrol wagon to the police station, where he passed the night. Further, the complaint charges that Officer Hersey used profane and indecent language, and threatened the defendant; and that he was guilty of neglect of duty in his failure to arrest a man named Donovan, who had held up and robbed the defendant of certain papers.

The complaint of Elijah Tejerian is the same, except that the charge of threatening is omitted.

Mr. Bent moved that the charges be dismissed, alleging that the charges are frivolous, and on the ground that they are not verified by the oath of the complainant; that the charges are vague and indefinite, and are not accompanied by specifications. He quoted rule 10 of the police board's manual, to prove his contention that the board has no authority to try an officer under the charges as framed, inasmuch as they are not verified by oath of the complainant, but merely in the form of an acknowledgment of a deed. Also, he said, copies of the charges have been furnished the defendant, but there are no specifications.

Daniel J. Donahue, who appeared for Patrolman Donovan, asked that the charges against his client be dismissed on the grounds as covered by Lawyer Bent. Dennis J. Murphy, counsel for the complainants, argued that the statement quoted had nothing to do with the case at that stage of the proceedings; that it merely refers to the rights of the officer after a hearing had been given. He said that the charges were sufficiently specific to allow the men to make their defense. He further added that he did not intend to furnish defense for his brother lawyer.

The board considered the matter and decided to defer the hearing and confer with counsel with a view to determining a line of action that would be satisfactory to all concerned.

The following minor licenses were granted at the executive session:

Common victuallers—Frank H. Carr, 11 Lawrence street; Nelson C. Hill, 50 Varnum avenue; Lewis Vallas, 14 Market street; George S. Emery, 50 Varnum avenue; C. G. G. A. R. PARADE

Great Demonstration Took Place in Toledo Today

Candidate Taft Among Those Who Reviewed the Parade—Ex- Prisoners of War Took a Prom- inent Part in Demonstration

TOLEDO, O., Sept. 2.—With flags flying, bands playing, crowd cheering and a bright sky overhead, veterans of the Grand Army of the Republic for the forty-second time marched through the streets of an encampment city today. At the official reviewing stand where stood William H. Taft, republican candidate for president, Governor Harris, Senator Foraker, Mayor Brand Whitlock and many other notables, the colors were dipped and each department commander joined Commander-in-Chief Burton in the stand. The parade being the leading feature of the encampment, many posts timed their arrival for that event and the crowd of visitors was augmented by thousands during the night. The day had been proclaimed a holiday by the mayor and the majority of the business places as well as all public offices were closed.

The long and wearing delay at various points of mobilization while waiting for the proper place to fall in discouraged some of the more feeble veterans and they joined the spectators. It was well towards 11 o'clock when the van of the parade marched past the reviewing stand where they were saluted with a bombardment of flowers for which surprise the women of Toledo had been preparing for some days. They emerged from the floral shower to be greeted by an immense human flag made up of nearly three thousand children, who in their dresses of red, white and blue swayed their bodies so that the emblem seemed to sway as in a breeze. The old soldiers saluted the picture with many a wave of hat or hand and hummed as they marched the patriotic songs the children sang.

First in line came a squad of mounted police followed by the marshal of the parade, W. M. McLaken and his staff. Next was a brass band followed by Commander-in-Chief Burton under escort of the Toledo post and past commander-in-chief and invited guests in carriages. In the order given following came the posts of the various states in the order of seniority: Illinois, Wisconsin, Pennsylvania, New York, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, New Jersey, Maine, California, Nevada, Rhode Island, New Hampshire and Vermont, department of the Potomac, Virginia and North Carolina, Maryland, Nebraska, Michigan, Iowa, Indiana, Colorado and Wyoming, Kansas, Delaware, Minnesota, Missouri, Oregon, Kentucky, West Virginia, South Dakota, Washington and Alaska, Arkansas, New Mexico, Utah, Tennessee, Louisiana and Mississippi, Florida, Texas, Montana, Idaho, Arizona, Georgia and South Carolina, Alabama, North Dakota, Oklahoma and Ohio. Then came the Association of Ex-Prisoners of War and the battle-flag division. At the rendezvous points of the various departments coffee and sandwiches were served to the waiting veterans, and those who desired to do so were allowed to carry away the cups as souvenirs.

Long before the parade started the streets were packed with humanity to a degree which made it almost impossible to move along the sidewalks. Every window along the profusely decorated streets was filled. Local newspapers estimate that including the veterans and their women folk there were 15,000 in the city.

Illinois with the large representation led the other departments eight abreast.

FAR FROM HOME

Young Englishman Says He is "Broke"

SEATTLE, Sept. 2.—Five thousand miles from home, practically without funds, and searching for a man whose name he never heard and whose address is a mystery, is the position in which P. H. Wingrove of London found himself when he awakened in Seattle. The young Englishman is here looking for a cousin of S. T. Lettbridge of London, whose name and address he carelessly forgot to learn before starting west.

"Stupid mistake. Really silly of me," commented Wingrove. "You know (after calling me to go to Seattle and visit Lettbridge's cousin. I was in Ogden U. at the time. Father was probably in a hurry and didn't tell me the name. I have never thought about finding it out until I reached here." And then Wingrove laughed.

"Father called me to come from Ogden here. He probably thought the cities were about 25 miles apart. I used up most of the money for transportation and now I'm what you Americans call 'broke.' Awfully funny, don't you think?" "You had better write London and find out the name of the man you're seeking," advised the reporter.

"Brilliant idea," exclaimed Wingrove. "Strange I didn't think of it before. And from the young man from the right little box, started for a telegraph office."

REFUSES TO PAY

FOR THE WRITINGS OF THEODORE ROOSEVELT

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—Argument on two motions yesterday before Justice Bischoff disclosed the fact that Jesse Watson, a lawyer of 60 Wall street, purchased from Kellar-Farmer Co. a December issue of the annual price of $2.00, 22 volumes of the "Individual Star Copy of the Writings of Theodore Roosevelt."

Mr. Watson, who is a collector of rare and valuable editions, agreed to pay for the $2.00 edition of President Roosevelt's writings at the rate of $50 a month. The argument further made public the fact that after Mr. Watson had paid $200 on account, he became dissatisfied with the contract and refused to make any further payments.

Mr. Watson sets forth that the copy which was delivered to him "is not an Individual Star Copy" and that the copy was not and is not accompanied by nor does it contain a commemorative autographic, or any autographic, letter of Theodore Roosevelt, and was of much less value than it would have been if it had been as agreed by the plaintiff."

REV. FR. VIAUD, O. M. I.

Tendered Reception by L'Association Catholique

And Presented With Valuable Gifts for Altar—Fr. Ronan Will Be Presented a Chalice

A farewell reception was tendered to Rev. Victor Viaud, O. M. I., who leaves St. Joseph's parish next Sunday to become assistant rector of the parish of Notre Dame-de-Lourdes by L'Association Catholique, of which he has been chaplain for the past four years, in C. M. A. C. hall, last evening.

President Homer L. P. Turcotte, presided over the exercises and nearly 200 members were present. Rev. Fr. Dubreuil, O. M. I., rector of Notre Dame-de-Lourdes, and Rev. Fr. Ouellette, O. M. I., who takes Fr. Viaud's place as chaplain of L'Association Catholique, accompanied Fr. Viaud in the hall.

President Turcotte paid an eloquent tribute to the retiring chaplain and spoke words of welcome to his successor. He then presented Fr. Viaud with a beautiful gold chalice, two gold candleabra and a sanctuary cross. Fr. Viaud responded gracefully and told of his pleasant relations with the society. Rev. Fr. Dubreuil and Ouellette also spoke after Fr. Viaud, as well as Henry Achin, Jr., J. E. I. Michaud, Joseph Provost, Eugene G. Roussin, Joseph L. Lamoureux and Henry Achin. Sr. There were readings also by George E. Fortier and Henri Daigle. Refreshments were served, and the pleasant affair closed with cheers for Rev. Fr. Viaud, Dubreuil and Ouellette.

The committee in charge consisted of Henry Barry, chairman; Ovide Morin, Eugene Savard, Arthur Genest, Alder Teller, Arthur Lussier, Henry Achin, Jr., Joseph Richard, Ed. Bergeron. Mr. Barry was the chief organizer of the affair.

ST. PETER'S FETE.
The men's committee in charge of the lawn party of St. Peter's parish and testimonial to Rev. Michael Ronan, pastor of St. Peter's held a well attended meeting at the fair hall, Gosham street last evening. Hon. James B. Casey presided and reports of the different sub-committees were heard. The entertainment committee reported its intention of presenting Fr. Ronan a beautiful gold chalice and a memorial suitably engraved. The full committee unanimously adopted the recommendation of the sub-committee in this respect. The presentation address for the chalice will be made by Prof. Hugh J. Molloy, while the memorial will be presented by Hon. James B. Casey.

At the regular meeting of the Y. M. C. A. last evening, Mr. William King was elected manager of the football team. Final arrangements were made for the outing to be conducted in the near future. Much routine business was transacted, and several members addressed the meeting.

ARTISANS' RECEPTION.
The Pawtucketville Artisans tendered a reception last night to Euclide Cinq-Mars, general delegate from the five Lowell Artisans branches to the recent convention held in Montreal. The reception took place at the Pawtucketville Social club. There were speeches and a game of cards, and refreshments were served. Mr. Cinq-Mars gave an interesting and detailed account of the convention.

This is by far the largest net average circulation of any newspaper in Lowell.

Mayor Farnham will not again be a candidate for mayor. Has he seen the writing on the wall?

The prospects for the success of the great auto race are daily improving. It will undoubtedly be one of the greatest races ever held in this country.

Judging from their pictures as printed in the newspapers, Mr. Bryan and Henry D. Clayton, who manages his campaign, can hardly be distinguished apart. They are moreover great admirers of each other, but no doubt when seen in the flesh there is no such close resemblance between the two men.

THE VERMONT SLUMP.

Vermont's republican slump has cast consternation into the republican camp. The plurality is the smallest since 1892, when Cleveland was elected. This will be taken as an indication that Bryan will be elected.

In 1892 the republican plurality was 21,669; in 1896, it was 40,460; in 1900, the figures were 29,719; in 1904, it reached the normal republican majority of 30,682, but in the present year the decline to 28,000, a decrease of eight per cent. is regarded as an ill omen for the G. O. P.

BANKS AND THEIR METHODS.

The banks of the country in their relation to business have been aptly likened to the heart and arteries of the human body.

That simile was well applied, no doubt, while prosperity reigned, and the banks were ready to let out their money on good security.

Of late, however, it would seem that if the banks represent the business heart, we are suffering from a species of heart-disease that might be termed the closing up of the ventricles and the consequent lack of circulation in the arteries.

Banks have it in their power to make business good or to keep things at a standstill. If they loan money on good security to legitimate enterprises they will help business. If they refuse to do this and close up their coffers as if fearing some financial crisis that would swamp their treasuries, they will injure business.

The banker who waits to do all in his power to help business will not refuse credit when the security is all right. He will, however, refuse credit beyond the borrower's apparent ability to pay and in this he is right.

But it is a well known fact that some banks during the recent panic and money stringency were guilty of the worst kind of hoarding. They have not yet quite recovered from their scare and as a result it has been very difficult to get loans for building purposes, while many manufacturing industries have found great difficulty in getting the money to pay their help. All this is due to the disposition of the banks to guard against possible contingencies in the nature of "runs" or other financial crises that might call for prompt payment of deposits.

The banks considered first and last their own interests while some of them took what appears to be unnecessary precautions against failure.

It is time that the banks loosened up and displayed more confidence in the future of business. While they hang back business will move very slowly towards the normal.

By some it is asserted that the most timid bank is the safest, but there is such a thing as excessive timidity. The system of currency, however, is at fault when it happens that the banks are afraid or unable to give out money enough to supply the ordinary needs of business. The element of elasticity has not been provided, and until this fault is properly remedied, we presume it is useless to blame the banks for taking unusual precautions for their own safety.

It is gratifying to know that the business depression has wiped out many dishonest banks throughout the country, banks that were not above using their power to squeeze business men in order to take over the property of the latter at much less than its actual value. Unfortunately, however, some highly reputable banks were forced to the wall through a variety of adverse circumstances.

Lowell has been fortunate in passing through the financial crisis without any bank failures. Her banks have at all times been amply able to meet all their obligations.

That German code is rather hard to interpret on the subject of marriage, particularly that section which provides that in case both parties do not belong to the same country, the marriage shall be governed as to each by the law of the state to which he or she belongs. On that principle, if the man was a German and the woman were French, the man might be married to the woman all right, but the woman might not be necessarily married to the man.

A preacher from New Zealand has been telling men in Indiana to tattoo their wives on the chin, so as to make them immune to the divorce habit. That might have the desired effect, if feasible, but what would the wives be doing while the tattooing was in process?

The young man and the girl were standing outside the front door, having a final chat after his evening call. He was leaning against the doorpost, talking in low tones. Presently the young lady looked round to discover her father in the doorway clad in a dressing gown.

"Why, father, what in the world is this matter?" she inquired. "John," said the father, addressing himself to the young man, "you know I have never complained about your staying late, and I'm not going to complain of that now; but for goodness' sake stop leaning against the door post and let the rest of the family get some sleep."

Comparatively few of our public men now wear beards. Of the seven candidates for president this year six have smooth-shaven countenances and Mr. Taft wears only a mustache. Out of 129 members of congress who were photographed some time ago, only 10 cultivated whiskers. The fashion of beardness is now also finding a steady increase of favor among the American rank and file.

The Japanese tattooer, in his tent on the beach, shook his head. "No, miss, I really wouldn't," he said. "If this young man should see or go back on you, it wouldn't be pleasant to have his initials on your arm. If A. R. L. came to die, how would you explain those letters to C. C.?"

"That's so," said the girl. "I hadn't

thought of that. Suppose you make it a blue butterfly."

"Much better," said the Oriental. "You see, with men it doesn't so much matter as with women or thirty girls' initials and full names tattooed all over them. But in the case of a girl—"

"Yes, by all means, make it a blue butterfly," she said, very firmly.

The following is inscribed on an Elk card that I picked up on the steps leading to the city hall, yesterday:

WHAT THEY ARE.

The Elks are not an insurance or assessment organization. They are the Clan whose blood circulates. Their cardinal virtues are to aid the sick, bury the dead, and inject sunshine into the dark places. They are not saints—simply disinterested practical Christians. There are no Elks in Father's Fields or County Shred. They live by the way and lend unto the Lord, for they give unto the poor. Their mission is to do good. There are no hungry Elks.

The faults of our brothers we write upon the sands; Their virtues upon the tablets of love and memory.

The campaign orator is a wholesome lesson in loyalty, says Appletons. To him there is nothing so great as this splendid country, nothing so beautiful as the starry flag that waves "on high," nothing so inspiring as the words of "The Star Spangled Banner."

He calls the army and the navy the "bulwarks of our liberty," and the soldiers "our gallant boys in blue." It doesn't matter much that they wear brown these days. "Blue" sounds better, and, besides, if he were to speak of the "boys in brown," some one might think he meant our distinguished fellow-citizens, the Philistines, or worse still, the gallant soldiers of Brownsville.

To hear him speak one would naturally infer that he had been one of the first to enlist in the late war with Spain, and one is somewhat surprised to learn that he was busy saving the country's honor at home during those troublous times. He was one of those who sat on the fence and yelled "Give 'em hell, boys!" when the soldiers marched by.

PEOPLE OF NOTE

A coming wedding will be that of Miss Edith Holt of New York city, the daughter of Henry Holt, the publisher, and one of the incorporators of the New York Association of the Blind, and Dr. Joseph Colt Bloodgood of Baltimore, associate professor of surgery at Johns Hopkins university, one of the best known surgeons in the country.

Professor J. B. E. Jones, professor of German at Brown university, has gone abroad to spend his sabbatical year in study and research in Germany. Professor Jones expects to spend most of the winter in research among certain valuable manuscripts in the Royal Library at Berlin. He will make a special study of the poems of the middle high German of the period of 1350, a body of literature which he says has unfortunately been little exploited thus far. He expects to make extensive extracts from these manuscripts with a view to their ultimate publication. Professor Jones will also study in the University of Berlin, and spend some time in travel among the northern states of Germany.

TALK OF ALLIANCE

With China Has Aroused Jealousy of Japan

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—Discussion in London, Paris and New York as to conditions that might arise in the event of an alliance between the United States and China seem to have been taken seriously by the orient. Recent dispatches from Peking hint at the possibility of Minister Wu Ting Fang being recalled because of remarks attributed to him concerning an alliance. Baron Takahira of Japan visited President Roosevelt at Oyster Bay, and is said to have discussed the alliance talk and the presence of the United States fleets in the Pacific.

AND THIS FROM SHERMAN.

Fall River Globe: "Mr. Bryan," says Mr. Sherman, "insults the people when he says they do not rule." But what was Mr. Sherman doing to the people when he was acting as Uncle Joe's choice boy and assisting his boss in thwarting their wishes. Adding injury to insult, apparently.

MR. CLEVELAND'S ADVICE.

Worcester Post: "What is the best principle and what the best policy to give the democratic party new life?" "As a general proposition I might answer this question by saying that in my opinion this could be most surely brought about by a return to genuine democratic doctrine and a close adherence to the democratic policies which in times past gave our party success and benefited our people."

"To be more specific in my reply, I should say that more than ever just at this time the democratic party should display honest and sincere conservatism, a regard for constitutional limitations and a determination not to be swept from our moorings by temporary clamor or spectacular exploitation."

"Our people need rest and peace and reassurance, and it will be quite in line with true democracy and successful policy to impress upon our fellow-countrymen the fact that democracy still stands for those things."

Grover Cleveland's last public utterance.

ENFERBELLING SCHOOL METHODS. Fall River Herald: The Boston Transcript says the enforcement of educational methods is due to the increasing number of women teachers and the passing of the New England schoolmaster adding "less kindergarten and more men." The way to settle it is to provide huddies and raise salaries to man's size.

WANT TO BE LET ALONE.

New York World: "We still have hope," said Theodore P. Shonts, president of the Interborough and of the Greater Lead, Chicago, and Allen, speaking of the railroads, "that we are going to be let alone and allowed to run our own business." That will depend largely upon the railroad themselves. They will not be let alone and allowed to run their own business as they have been doing for many years, because the people demand a change for the better, voluntary or enforced.

THE MAN WHO SHIRKS.

Lawrence Eagle: Those who are ever ready to do their part in the work of the world—whether it be industrial, benevolent or religious—the shirker is a very unattractive person. The shirker is the one who fails to do his work as he knows it ought to be done; who loafs when he should be busy; who sets another to do his share of his work and claims full time and wages for both. The shirker then is found in the one who does not do the little and the little that duty calls for in his work; the one who, with ample gifts and abundant material means does not respond to the voice of duty when it calls in unmistakable tones; the one who ignores duty in small things or great, with full knowledge that he ought to do the things that he leaves undone whether small or great. The shirker, well, he is just a snick.

summer people out of a party of 10 were drowned by the capsizing of a 35-foot sloop in Penobscot bay off this island yesterday.

The bodies of Lottie Kellogg and Miss Evans were recovered. There was some hope that Mr. Hutchins had been saved. When last seen he was making a brave struggle through the choppy seas toward Barron island, nearby. A boat was sent from this town last night in the effort to locate him, if possible.

With Capt. Samuel Haskell the party of six summer people started out yesterday afternoon for a sail in Penobscot bay. It was drawing near the close of the vacation season for some of them and they had planned this as their last outing together.

The wind was fresh from the southwest, kicking up a good sea and promising exhilarating sport for the party of merry-makers. The sloop was of the "open" variety, that is, it had no deck forward and no cabin, as many of the small Maine boats have, and it contained no ballast, as the party of 10 weighted the boat down quite heavily and Capt. Haskell, an experienced navigator in these waters, thought the human ballast sufficient.

The party had scarcely been gone an hour before the wind freshened up, heeling the sloop well over and dashing the spray upon the occupants, much to their grief. There was no thought of danger until the afternoon was drawing to a close, when Capt. Haskell decided that the wind was too heavy for his boat and the sea too choppy, so he brought the boat around and started a tack homeward.

All of the party were perched high up on the weather side, as the sloop cut through the waves with the water almost coming over the gunwales on the lee side when Capt. Haskell gave a shout of warning that he was going to tack, and then threw over the tiller. Just at this moment the boat rose high up on a wave, exposing her to the full brunt of the wind. An unusually heavy gust struck her and in a twinkling the sloop was over on her beam ends and the party of 10 was in the water.

For one brief moment it was every one for one's self. Capt. Haskell, however, took in the situation in one quick glance. He had been clinging to the sheet and his tenacious hold had not been loosened by the sudden plunge into the ice-cold waters of the Maine coast. He saw that the boat's tender was still right side up, and shouting to Prof. Crawley and Henry Evans, who were nearest to him, he directed them to make for the tender, doing so at the same time himself. Prof. Crawley, however, still clung to the overturned sloop, looking for his wife, while Evans was trying vainly to locate his sister.

In the meantime Capt. Haskell had gained the tender and clambered aboard. Cutting it loose from the overturned sloop he picked up the caps and, bringing the boat up near Crawley and Evans, helped them aboard, persuading them that the only way they could help the women was from the rowboat. But even then the women were beyond help. Weighted down by their water-soaked clothes and chilled through to the marrow by the cold waters, they had been unable to keep themselves afloat. Some of them had grabbed the person nearest them by the neck and in some instances they had gone down together, clasped in each other's arms.

The three men in the tender found that they were almost as incapable of giving assistance in their boat as they had been in the water. The wind was too high and the sea too rough for them to handle the small boat. They were in grave danger themselves of being thrown once more into the water.

The upset, however, had been seen from Eagle island, not far from the accident, and as soon as possible a sloop was sent out to pick up the survivors. They reached the tender just in time and pulled the three exhausted men aboard. Of the rest of the party but two were in sight and the boat was headed for them. They were the bodies of Lottie Kellogg and Miss Evans. They were unconscious, and although the rescuers worked vigorously over them all efforts to restore life failed.

The boat was well back on its way to the island before the fate of Hutchins was recalled. Then some one remembered that he had seen Hutchins swimming strongly for Barron island. It was too late then to change the boat's course, for by that time the young man had either gone to the bottom or had managed to reach the rocks, and the survivors already in the boat were urgently in need of attention.

Hutchins was a student in the Bangor Theological seminary, and had been filling one of the pulpits on Deer Isle for the summer. A boat was sent to hunt for him as soon as the survivors reached land.

The boat returned unsuccessful last evening. It is now practically certain that Hutchins sank before he could reach the rocks of the island. It was a long swim against wind and sea, and encumbered as he was by his clothes, Hutchins' chance of reaching safety was exceedingly slim. A lookout was kept up and down the coast for bodies.

A BILLERICA MAN.
Jason Herbert Hutchins, who lost his life in the drowning accident off Deer Isle yesterday, was a member of the senior class of the Bangor Theological seminary and considered an exceptionally brilliant student. He was 26 years old and engaged to Miss Dorothea Beach, only daughter of Pres. David Nelson Beach, of the seminary, now with the family in their summer home at Kineo.

His home was in Billerica, Mass., where he leaves a father and mother. He was some time in the employ of Fields & Cowles of Boston. He was acting as pastor of the church at Sunset, a settlement on Deer Isle, for the summer.

AN INDIAN BOY SERVING LIFE SENTENCE GETS PARDON

WASHINGTON, Sept. 2.—The President has ordered the pardon of William Judge, a Cherokee Indian boy serving a life sentence at Fort Leavenworth for murder.

Charlie Sunday, another Cherokee boy was Judge's rival, and Caroline Goings, the belle of the Indian village in the territory, was the object of their affections. Sunday's body was fished out of the Illinois river, and the physicians said that certain finger marks around his neck proved that he was strangled to death. A number of witnesses testified that they had heard Judge declare he would "do away with Sunday," and the girl in the case swore that he had assured her that she would never see Sunday again.

All this happened early in 1902. Since then a number of the witnesses have experienced a change of heart, and Judge's friends have produced proof of perjury sufficient to convince the President and attorney-general that the prisoner is entitled to a pardon.

HOUSE ENTERED

Thieves Got Away With Silverware

Thieves have been at work in this city of late and while many breaks have been reported to the police, the public has heard little of the burglaries that have been committed. A couple of weeks ago the residence of Fred B. Hayward at 17 Sanborn street was broken into and considerable valuables, including silverware worth $200, taken.

Mr. Hayward, who is the manager of the M. Stinchert & Sons Co. in this city, with his family, was in Beachmont, and his nearest neighbor was also away. When Mr. Hayward returned to this city Sunday night he discovered that his silverware, including costly wedding presents on tableware and ornaments, had been taken by thieves, who effected an entrance through a parlor window.

Not a single silver article on the lower floor of the house remained to the family. Mr. Hayward, who had never in the past taken unusual precautions with his property, had left the silverware in its accustomed place and the thieves had evidently found no trouble in discovering it.

Every drawer in our desk or sideboard on the lower floor of the house had been ransacked, but peculiarly enough the upper floors had apparently not been molested. It is probable that the burglars were frightened away by some noise before they had an opportunity to search the upper stories.

Mr. Hayward immediately notified the police, and the latter have been working on various clues, but up to the present time they have met with but little success.

CHANGES COLOR

Woman Alternates Between Black and White

INDIANAPOLIS, Sept. 2.—Mrs. America Massey of this city is apparently undergoing a third change from white to black. She was born a colored slave in Bowling Green, Ky., in 1846, and lived there till 1895, when she came to Indiana. She is, or was, naturally a rather dark mulatto.

In 1884 she began to turn white, and in two years the transformation was complete. By 1888 she was black again, the return to her original color being made rapid, then the change from black to white. Shortly after this she began to change again, and soon became perfectly white. Early in the 90s she again turned dark.

When she came here in 1896 she was becoming white very rapidly, and the transformation has remained till within the past few days, when two dark spots appeared on one side of her face and one on the other side. She recognized these as the forerunners of the change, but says that it has not been preceded by the itching sensation she experienced preceding the other two changes from black to white and from white to black. She says that she was examined by many physicians in Kentucky when she was undergoing the first change, but none of them could advance any reasonable theory for the transformation.

A PROTEST

AGAINST THE PRESENCE OF THAW IN JAIL

ALBANY, N. Y., Sept. 2.—In a report submitted to the state commission on prisons yesterday, Secretary McLaughlin protests against the further confinement in the Dutchess county jail at Poughkeepsie of Harry K. Thaw. The report among other things says that Thaw's presence in the jail "demoralizes the discipline of the institution."

The report says in part: "He (Thaw) has been held in this jail for several months pending the outcome of litigation, which looks now as though it might be interminable. His presence in this jail is embarrassing to the sheriff and objectionable on many accounts. The sheriff has no room for him except in the padded cell; even this he needs for temporary uses, and it would be an entirely unfit place in which to confine a man for months. Having been advised in person with homicidal tendencies, the sheriff would not be justified in confining him with the other prisoners.

"The result is that the sheriff has to give him an entire corridor with the thirteen cells adjacent. In the principal jail for men. He needs this room for his other prisoners. The wardens of it makes it impossible for him to properly classify the regular prisoners.

He consumes a large amount of the time of the jailer in escorting him to Fishkill Landing, White Plains and other places to attend hearings before the court and before referees, time which the jailer needs for his other duties. There is a good deal of public talk that some of these hearings are on fake suits, instituted by his friends to give him these outings.

"His presence here demoralizes the discipline of the institution. He sleeps in the corridor, not in the cell. He has all the fixtures and paraphernalia of a business office. His papers lie strewn from the hotel, which has to be brought to him three times a day. Silly people send him bouquets of flowers. He is allowed the use of a whole corridor, constituting one-quarter of the entire principal jail for men, while the other prisoners are crowded into a cell frequently. All these things are under the observation of the other prisoners and create dissatisfaction and a belief that the men with money constitute a separate class even in a prison.

"These things produce an ugly feeling of discontent and rebellion among the other prisoners.

"It would seem that a person who had been adjudged insane but who is now conducting proceedings for his discharge on the ground of recovery, should be detained in an institution where he would be under the observation of experts, who could advise the court of his changed mental condition, if it has occurred."

LOST HIS MONEY ENGINEER DEAD DESPONDENT MEN

Leal Gave it Up to "Friends"

BOSTON, Sept. 2.—The police of Boston and vicinity are looking for two Italians, who yesterday afternoon succeeded in relieving a fellow countryman, Ernesto F. Leal of 175 Belleville avenue, New Bedford, of $270, after the three had become "acquainted" on Water street, Charlestown.

Leal had arrived in Boston, intending to see the sights and later to pay a visit to his native land. He was on his way toward the navy yard, intending to visit the steamship wharf, when the two strangers showed up, and after the formalities which have been used in more than 100 cases of "con game" this year by Italians in this section, Leal was impressed with the necessity of handing over his money to his new friends for safekeeping.

Shortly after doing so, Leal reported to the officers of station 15.

The "friends" are about 30 years old, 5 feet 6 inches tall, wore dark clothes and soft hats. One weighed about 130 and the other about 150 pounds.

Questions Agitating Followers of Baseball

President Johnson's Efforts to Suppress Betting at Games

The Spit Ball Controversy

Ban on Bonus Money

Football Outlook

THE announcement by President Johnson of the American league of his determination to attempt to suppress betting at baseball games on that circuit may have seemed an unnecessary precaution to some and an untimely agitation of a painful subject to others. As a matter of fact, it is neither unnecessary nor ill timed. To those familiar with less betting is suppressed as much as possible these gamblers will get bold and make themselves prominent at every park, for there is no way to suppress absolutely all betting at ball games, and wagers between two friends or neighbors at a contest will be made despite every effort to the contrary. But so long as the clubs' owners can prevent the wagering of large sums of little now in the National league. Such pitchers as Christy Mathewson, "Three Fingers" Brown, Nap Rucker and George McQuillen seldom if ever resort to it. There are a large number of spit ball pitchers in the American league, and it is against the organization that the agitation is strongest. A number of managers in this league are in favor of legislation against the delivery.

The spit ball handicaps the batter, prevents the fielders and catchers from handling the ball in a cleanly manner, charging them with errors which would never have been made with a dry the coming winter and next spring. The writer has a suggestion to make to the agitators which they might consider. Since many of the cities on the league circuits have ordinances in force against spitting in public places the agitators might invoke the aid of the different boards of health to suppress the offensive sphere.

Now listen to the yell! The baseball diamond athletes are not going to be handed a package of money for winning world championships after this. The national baseball commission has met and decided to put the ban on the offering of all bonus money. Last considerations. Strategy has just begun to show itself, and there is no reason why the present fall should not see some wonderful football, even from the smaller college teams. It will be the third year of the forward pass and outside kick. The former will have to prove that the new ruling has reformed it sufficiently to make its stay in the rule book advisable, while the latter is likely to add to its reputation as one of the greatest and most strategic plays of the game.

THOMAS F. CLARK.

STANLEY KETCHEL.

Stanley Ketchel is gradually getting to Tommy Burns. Indeed, unless Ketchel decides Johnson or Langford as his opponent it will have to be Tommy Burns. Ketchel whipped Kelly so decisively that there is no longer any question as to who has a clear claim to the middleweight title.

But the wonderful Michiganander is getting heavier every day, and it is only a question of a year at the longest before he will be too big to make the middleweight limit. Then Ketchel will have to step into the heavyweight division, and everybody that has seen Ketchel in action during the past year predicts that he will be the man to wrest the title from Tommy Burns.

Ketchel is very popular just now. He is of the type of pugilist that takes with the followers of ring fighting. He jumps in and wins quickly. But Ketchel may get himself in bad if he decides to draw the color line. When a man adopts pugilism as a so called profession he is expected to meet all comers. In the case of Langford he cannot hide behind the excuse that a battle with the negro from Boston would not prove a drawing card.

WAGNER'S BAD LUCK.

A ludicrous incident in Wagner's career happened in Chicago a few years ago. Hans had on a new pair of uniform pants. They were too tight. During the contest, while playing short, he put his hands in his hip pocket to get a piece of plug chewing tobacco. His hand stuck in the pocket, and while Hans was vainly trying to extricate it Frank Chance popped up an easy infield fly right above Hans' head. Hans struggled and said things, and perspiration poured from his face, the crowd howled in glee and the ball dropped safely a few feet away.

CY YOUNG USES FEW CURVES.

Sam Crawford of the Detroit Tigers gives a good reason for the continued success of Cy Young, who is now in his nineteenth year as a pitcher. "Young has lasted so long, I think," says Sam, "because he seldom uses a curve ball, and when he does pitch one it is just a little twister. The curve wears a man's arm out more quickly than does speed. Young depends almost solely on his speed and control. If he had used a curve ball the way the average pitcher does, I don't think he would be up there today the way he is."

baseball from compulsory daily association with it there is much significance in the constantly increasing groups of busy fans, who gather in a certain section of the different stands at nearly every baseball park in the big leagues. Usually these clusters of men around these mysterious centers are in the pavilions. There is where those on the inside know they can make a wager on the game or the final score at odds fixed by the man or clique which is willing to bet all comers. In these groups of men lies baseball's greatest danger.

As yet betting has not reached dangerous proportions. It has to be done quietly, and because of the excellent chances for a "welsner" to get away no great sums are hazarded. But unmoney the danger of a scandal will be minimized.

Spit Ball Agitation.

Will the spit ball remain? That is a question which is agitating baseball men everywhere nowadays. There seems little doubt that the vapor fling will be freely discussed both pro and con at the next meeting of the big leagues, and it is just probable that it will be legislated against. Enemies of the damp delivery claim that it is not legitimate, but a mere freak pitch, deplorable upon by twirlers who have lost their effectiveness with the old time slants and curves and who feel the need of something out of the ordinary to keep them in the running. It is a fact that it is being used very sphere, besides causing the game to become a long drawn out affair by their necessarily slow movement.

Agitation against the spit ball is spreading, and it is likely that its retention or abrogation will be the subject of warm debate at the meetings year the Detroit owners gave their entire receipts to the champions of the American league, even after they had lost four straight in the world series. Charles Murphy of the Chicagoans, who won the games, did not like it. He did not want to shell out and raised a kick against such tactics. Other league magnates had no great love for the scheme, and so the commission has forbidden the offering of special inducements or reward. The players get 60 per cent of the proceeds anyway, and they figure this enough.

As a result of this belated action the owners of the leading teams in the American and National leagues are being blamed by the ball players for the new rule. Anticipating a victory, so it is charged, these magnates wanted to protect themselves against the precedent which almost made it compulsory to present a goodly portion of the gate receipts to the players after the world series.

They used the national commission to hide behind, or, to use a slang phrase, made the commission a "fall guy."

With neither pennant decided, the "squawks" will not go up until it is determined just which set of players will be affected by the new rule. Then there will be a yell, and the selfishness

Sensational Features of the Opening Dramatic Season

[From Our New York Dramatic Correspondent.]

THE dramatic season has opened with a flourish of theatrical trumpets which amounts to an actual fanfare. Most of this unusual preliminary activity is due to the managerial competition which has arisen over the production of "The Devil," a play by Franz Molnar, which has had a remarkable run in European playhouses. Some time ago Colonel Henry W. Savage secured the rights—of thought he had—to produce this play in America. He had a translation made from the original Hungarian, selected a cast, had it rehearsed and played it in Hartford, Conn., under the title of "The Cloven Hoof." He thought so highly of it that he determined to open the Garden theater, New York, with it early in the autumn. Then he went on his vacation happy in the belief that he had in his exclusive possession a thriller which would thrill.

Conceive of the energetic colonel's amazement and quick indignation when one morning as he was taking his coffee and newspaper in fancied security he discovered among the theatrical advertisements an announcement to the effect that a rival manager was going to play "The Devil" on a date earlier than the one already designated by the man who had given us "The College Widow" and "The Merry Widow" and had promised us a hero in the person of his Satanic majesty!

After a bad half hour for himself and possibly for those in his immediate vicinity Colonel Savage got exceedingly busy. Before high noon of that very day he had arranged to raise the devil of his own exclusive vintage on the same night selected by Mr. Harrison Grey Fiske, the keen manager, who had stolen a march on him. To make good his promise to be first in this devilish business the colonel agreed to raise his devil at 8:15 precisely. Mr. Fiske had already admitted that he would not do the trick until 8:20.

Two Real Devils.

So it happened that New York is provided with at least two devils. That they appeared simultaneously, one at the Garden theater and the other at the Belasco, is a sufficient indication of the ancient theological notion that Satan is a single personality who cannot occupy more than one place at the same moment. Here, no doctrine of that sort will find believers in New York, for isn't Mr.

George Arliss at the Belasco just as real a devil as is Mr. Edwin Stevens at the Garden?

"The Devil" is in three acts, and in each of them Molnar has set forth boldly in dialogue and action the varying passions of the human soul. From first to last the devil seems to be laughing at the very human weaknesses which he is portraying. The plot is not an especially novel one, but it is worked out with great ingenuity. The devil makes his appearance soon after the curtain rises on the first act and is the last to leave the stage when all is over. From beginning to end it is the devil who dominates everybody and everything. The play opens in the studio of a young artist, Karl Mahler in the Savage version, who has achieved a reputation as a portrait painter. Six years previously Karl had met Olga Hoffman, then a poor girl, and the pair had been lovers in the most conventional sense of the term: A rich suitor came along, and Olga married him without love. All went well until, after six years, the rich husband brought his wife to the artist's studio to have her picture painted.

Then the trouble begins. The husband leaves the wife in the studio while he goes on a business errand, promising to call for her in half an hour or so. It is almost nightfall, but there is time for a preliminary sketch. Both Karl and Olga feel conscious and strangely embarrassed. Both realize that time has not converted the early affection into mere platonic friendship, and the knowledge makes them awkward and their conversation irrelevant. Olga wears a high necked blouse, and they both remember that the husband requires a picture showing neck and shoulders. Karl provides some drapery and retires modestly from the room while Olga adjusts it. While she is in the act the devil appears—a middle aged gentleman in scrupulously correct afternoon dress who has apparently been dozing in a chair behind a screen. Olga screams, the intruder apologizes humbly, and the artist comes to the rescue, the beautiful neck and shoulders still uncovered.

Of course the devil makes his presence appear to be quite the most natural thing in the world. He wouldn't be the real thing if he failed to do so.

He half convinces the artist that he is an old acquaintance, and his Chesterfieldian manners reassure Olga. He proceeds at once to fan the flame which is only smoldering. Before the husband returns to the studio this suave devil has accomplished wonders in the way of speeding the downfall of these two agitated souls.

That night Olga gives a party at her house, and Karl resolves to escape from the impending danger by proposing to Elsa Berg, a rich young girl who loves him. The devil, masquerading as Dr. Miller, makes his appearance among the guests attired in the most impeccable evening dress and soon dominates the entire situation. Before the evening is over he succeeds in overcoming every moral scruple which has restrained the infatuated lovers, and before he leaves the house he compels Olga to invite a letter to Karl in which she confesses that his regard is more precious to her than any other consideration, earthly or otherwise. The devil puts the incursive in his pocket, promising to deliver it to the artist, and bids the wretched woman a bland good evening.

The Victim Hesitates.

In the morning, in an agony of fear and postmortem penitence, Olga hastens to the studio resolved to recover possession of the damaging letter at any cost. Just as the artist is assuring her that he has not received it the devil enters and, begging pardon for the delay, hands Karl a sealed epistle. At the sight of it Olga makes a frantic appeal to the artist to throw it into the fire without reading it. Without a word of dissent he tears it into shreds and tosses the pieces into the grate.

It is then that the most amazing thing happens. Almost before the last flicker of the burning pieces of paper has disappeared Olga is dominated by a force reaction and declares madly that she would give all that she holds precious in life to have the letter again. "What would you do with it?" asks the bogus Dr. Miller, with a smile that is almost philanthropic. "Would you give it to your husband?" "Yes," the frenzied woman shrieks. "I would give it to Karl!" Still smiling benevolently, his Satanic majesty pulls another letter from the pocket of his coat and hands it to the artist. "I beg a thousand pardons," he confesses softly. "I made the mistake of handing you the bill of my tailor. This is the note in question."

Karl tears it from the envelope, scans it speedily, suppresses a great cry of exultation, folds Olga in his arms and almost carries her from the studio. As the door closes behind them Dr. Miller, with a sigh that seems half regretful and with his features still beaming benignantly, consults his timepiece, dons his greatcoat and high hat, grasps his bag and umbrella and goes his way, stopping only long enough to observe, half cynically, half pathetically, and never once forgetting to smile, "There you have it!"

Frankly, "The Devil" is a remarkable play, a powerful play, a play that will inspire the widest discussion. A friend, a clergyman, as it happens, tells me that it impresses him as being the greatest morality play of the day. I do not agree with him. To me it is the spirit of evil made dominant, almost deified. Virtue is never once given an opportunity to assert itself. It is a return to the devil of the middle ages.

Isadora Duncan's Dances.

Another unique feature of the opening season has been the dancing of Miss Isadora Duncan at the Criterion theater. Although she is an American, Miss Duncan's torrisichorean triumphs have been won abroad. Rumors of the great appreciation which she has received in European capitals have come to us from time to time, and we have waited patiently for our turn. Now that it has come we are glad to record that disappointment has not resulted.

For Miss Duncan is an artist. With no accessories save a draped stage, a first class orchestra and no more costuming than a girl might have worn in the days of Homer, she has already danced her way into the hearts of her admiring countrymen. It was a heroic task for a single dancer to undertake to furnish amusement for an entire evening, but Miss Duncan has proved that she was not mistaken in believing that she was equal to it.

It is true that with her dancing has again become an intelligible language. All her movements are instinct with intelligence, and she seems never to lose her sense of vital expression and interpretation. After the bizarre and perilously near to indecent show the so called "Salome" dancers are making of themselves, Miss Duncan's poetical efforts seem like a respectful tribute to propriety—that, too, in spite of the fact that the dancer's feet are bare and her drapery strictly classic.

KILLED BY BLOW

Tammany Chief Staggered Home With His Skull Fractured

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—Philip McGovern, one of the best known Tammany captains of the 11th assembly district, whose saloon, on the northeast corner of Forty-third street and Ninth avenue, was a favorite place for the political followers of the McGoverns, Tammany leader of that district, is dead of a fractured skull, and his friends in the district are insinuating that he was the victim of a black-jack. The case puzzles the police.

McGovern got up at 5 o'clock Sunday morning and said he was going down Ninth avenue to Twenty-sixth street. He told his wife that he would be back for breakfast, and his family, knowing that he was interested in the business in that section of the city, sought no more about it until McGovern staggered up the three flights of stairs an hour later. He managed to open the door of the apartment, then without a word fell in a heap. All efforts to arouse him were unavailing. He died on the operating table.

Dr. Quackenbush was trepanning McGovern's skull when the patient died.

"It was one of the worst fractures I have ever seen in all my career," said Dr. Quackenbush, "and in my opinion the blow had made it was inflicted by a strong-arm man. Mr. McGovern was unconscious when I got to him, and from the moment he collapsed until he died in the New York College hospital he never even partially recovered consciousness."

"I am told that Mr. McGovern always carried a large sum of money about with him, usually from $200 to $1000, but his family said that when he fell unconscious in his apartment there was only 5 cents in his pockets." The news that Philip McGovern was dead, and that he was probably the victim of a strong-arm man, was about the only topic of conversation in the 11th assembly district. Everybody knew McGovern, and all said he had been a kind-hearted man, who talked little.

THE ALDERMEN

Held a Meeting Last Night

AND REFUSED TO CONFIRM THE MAYOR'S APPOINTMENT.

Of Leroy M. Turner to Be Inspector of Milk and Vinegar—Six Traverse Jurors Were Drawn—Petitions for Personal Injuries Referred to Committee.

The board of aldermen held an after-noon meeting last night and while the meeting was not a very important one, quite a lot of business was gone through with.

The board did not confirm the mayor's appointment of Leroy M. Turner to the office of inspector of milk and vinegar. There was a question as to whether or not Mr. Turner is a practical chemist.

The following traverse jurors were drawn by Alderman Comerford: Gardner Mills, 15 Hampshire street, clerk; Peter H. Savage, 21 Ames street, undertaker; James Liston, 38 Concord street, janitor; George B. McKiddier, 38 Lincoln street, steam maker; Frank J. Banahy, 33 State street, plasterer; and Thomas England, 12 Warwick street, tinsmith.

The petition of V. A. Bates, agent of the health board, for an appropriation of $200 for the care of a smallpox patient, was referred to the committee on appropriations.

A petition by Peter J. Brady for damage to machinery was referred to the committee on claims.

The N. E. Tel. Co. petitioned for a hearing relative to pole locations at the corner of Wedge and Laurel streets, for re-location of poles in Rhodora street, for re-location of ten poles in Westford street and Sept. 15 was the date set for the hearings.

Eugene E. Stoughton petitioned for the right to move a building in Midland street, and Sept. 15 was the date set for the hearing on the matter.

The Y. E. Tel. Co. petitioned for notice of personal injuries and their petitions were referred to the committee on claims.

The mayor's appointment of Leroy M. Turner to the office of inspector of milk and vinegar was read. Alderman Comerford wanted to know if Mr. Turner is a practical chemist, and Alderman Gray said he understood that Mr. Turner had been a chemist in the laboratory of the C. I. Food Co. Rule 13 was not suspended, and the appointment will lay on the table under the rules.

The joint order to discontinue street watering in Tenth and Beacon streets was adopted.

A joint resolution to lower the sewer in Dutton street a distance of 20 feet to a point opposite the centre of Music Hall avenue, so-called, was adopted.

A resolution to lay a surface water drain in Elliptical street, the cost to be charged to the appropriation for sewer construction in Wignerville, was adopted.

A resolution to lay a pond in Kensington street was adopted.

A petition to change the hours of voting in the city of Lowell to the hours between 6 a. m. and 4 p. m., signed by 100 citizens, was read. Mr. Gray favored the change, because he believed that there was much confusion caused owing to the different hours of polling between primaries and elections. The petition, as an amendment to the original order, was defeated. Adjourned.

JOHN E. REDMOND

DUBLIN, Sept. 2.—At a meeting yesterday of the Central branch of the United Irish league, John Redmond, who presided, dilated upon the importance of the last parliamentary session so far as Ireland was concerned.

He considered the Irish university bill one of the greatest emancipating measures of the century, and he should always be proud of his share in its adoption. Ireland, he said, would receive nearly $4,000,000 a year under the old age pensions bill, which would benefit 70,000 people in Ireland. These and other measures were the substantial results of their parliamentary work.

He uttered a warning to the British government, however, that there was still important work to be done in connection with land legislation and the congested districts, falling which the nationalists would not be responsible for the maintenance of peace in Ireland.

A resolution was adopted embodying the customary demand for home rule. A letter was read from Stephen O'Hara, resigning from his position as trustee of the Irish parliamentary fund, on the ground that he is out of sympathy with the policy of the nationalist party, which he accuses of being satisfied to accept whatever crumbs fall from the liberal table.

COUNTRESS SZECHENYI'S CONDITION CAUSES ALARM

VIENNA, Sept. 2.—A despatch received here from Budapest states that Countess Szechenyi is seriously ill, following her accompaniment of a still-born child, but according to the latest reports the immediate danger is past, although she will be confined to bed, it is feared for a long time. It appears that the countess started a few days ago on an automobile tour with her husband when she suddenly became ill. She was conveyed home to Ungvar castle and as speedily as possible doctors were summoned from Budapest. The countess' mother, Mrs. Cornelia Vanderbilt of New York, has been requested by cable to come to Budapest.

EUROPEAN BANKERS

Are Greatly Interested in Monetary Conditions in America

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—Senator Daniel of Virginia, Rep. Vreeland of New York and Rep. Overstreet of Indiana, a subcommittee of the congressional commission appointed to study the banking and monetary systems of Europe, arrived yesterday on the steamship Kronprinz Wilhelm.

Speaking of the results of the commission's inquiry abroad, Mr. Vreeland, vice chairman, said:

"The commission was treated with the greatest kindness and cordiality by the great bankers of London. The governor of the Bank of England, and two of his managing directors, came before the commission and submitted to interrogatories in detail in relation to the workings of their systems. The managers of four or five of the great joint stock banks in London also came before the commission and gave freely and in great detail all the information desired."

The commission went thoroughly into the question of branch banking, of reserves, of workings of their currency system and other important details relating to the subject.

"The bankers of Great Britain are greatly interested in the American situation, because the money panic in the United States of October, 1907 put very severe strain upon the Bank of England and the great banks of London. Similar interest in our monetary conditions exists also in Berlin and Paris."

"The sub-committee, consisting of Senator Daniel, Mr. Overstreet and myself, visited Paris. The governor of the Bank of France gave the commission a whole afternoon in answering all questions asked concerning the French system, and particularly that of the great national bank. We found that both the English and French bankers are thoroughly satisfied with their banking and currency systems."

"Senator Aldrich, chairman of the commission and Prof. Andrews of Harvard, who has been employed by the commission, are now in Berlin, getting information along the same lines as that secured in London and Paris."

"The commission could have put in another month in Europe to great advantage. We have so far obtained only the opinions of the banking side of the question. We found the bankers in the country districts thoroughly satisfied with the system, but we must still secure information as to how their systems are viewed by those outside of the banking business, the merchants, manufacturers and the great masses of people. We also intend to take up thoroughly the banking system of Scotland and Canada, as the systems of these countries have been looked upon with much favor by many Americans."

"It was the desire of the commission to make its report a mine of exact information upon monetary matters. It does not follow that a system which may be thoroughly satisfactory in a country like France or England would be best adapted to the United States, with its enormous expanse of territory and its enormous and increasing business. No attempt will be made to frame a measure along these lines to present at the coming session. It is probable some recommendations will be made as to a revision of our administrative banking laws. For example, a more efficient examination of national banks. Beyond this nothing will be attempted."

"The commission gave special attention to the workings of the postal savings banks of England and France. The bankers of Paris gave us one bit of information which was something of a surprise to us, that is, that at least four hundred millions of dollars is hoarded by the people of France that is not deposited in banks."

TRAINS CRASHED

Rear End Collision on B. & M., at Andover Last Night

ANDOVER, Sept. 2.—A train on the western division of the Boston & Maine railroad crashed into the rear end of another train just north of the passenger station here last night.

That the latter was in motion undoubtedly saved the lives of many passengers. Several were badly shaken up, but only one, Dennis Lane of Haverhill, had to be attended by a physician and he was able to proceed to his home later in the evening. His face was cut some by falling glass and he was badly shaken up.

The second train is a regular passenger from Boston, due at Andover just before 8 o'clock and was in charge of Conductor Joseph Doubly of Boston. The other was an extra, consisting of 14 empty passenger cars, and was in charge of Conductor John Worthington of Boston.

The passenger train made the stop at Andover and was just pulling out of the station when the accident occurred. Conductor Doubly claims that he had a brakeman out standing any following train, but it was not seen in time to prevent the collision. The rear car was badly damaged and had to be abandoned and the locomotive on the extra sustained considerable damage, but not enough to put it out of commission.

LANGFORD'S BOUT

He Had the Advantage Over Jeannette

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—Sam Langford of Boston and Joe Jeannette, of New Jersey, met last night at the National Athletic club, and Langford clearly won.

They boxed six rounds and in only one of these Jeannette showed to any shade of advantage. He was knocked down twice in the opening round, with right hand smashes and again in the fifth he took a count of eight seconds from a left and a right to the head and jaw.

Neither man seemed to be in the championship class. While Langford was always on the aggressive and effective, at that he was unable to block big Joe's left hand jabs, and it was a pretty even battle up to the end of the fourth round, where Langford's stock was away up on finishing some of his kidney blows being more than effective. Jeannette stood his punishment well and for a brief period in the third round he hammered and rushed Langford to the ropes, but he was not able to take advantage of any opportunity and Langford easily got back at every call of the bell and won by a big margin on points.

6 O'CLOCK HEAVILY ARMED

Trio of Italians Were Captured by the Lynn Police

LYNN, Sept. 2.—A trio of Italians who claim Buffalo, N. Y., as their home were captured here today and are being held by the police on suspicion that they may know something concerning the many highway robberies in the country heretofore during the past few weeks. All of the men were heavily armed but refused to give the police any information as to their identity. They were captured in a dark alleyway off Chatham street.

All of the men carried 38 calibre revolvers and each had a suitcase while two had knives in their belts. An electric flashlight was discovered in one man's pocket and all of the trio had ammunition for their revolvers. The only explanation that they would give for their presence in the city was that they had been visiting friends. In police court they were held in $500 bonds for a further examination.

ADMIRAL GLASS YACHT PURITAN

Famous Boat Enters Mercantile Traffic

PASO ROBLES, Cal., Sept. 2.—Rear Admiral Henry Glass, U. S. N., retired, died late yesterday afternoon at a health resort here of heart failure following an operation performed several days ago at his home in Berkeley. Admiral Glass, who was 64 years of age, had been ill for two months and his condition had been regarded as critical for some time.

Rear Admiral Glass was born in Kentucky in 1844, and was appointed to the naval academy in 1860. As an ensign he participated in all the general engagements with the batteries in Charleston harbor in 1862 and in the capture of Georgetown, S. C., in 1865. As commander of the cruiser Charleston he conveyed the first troops to the Philippines and captured Ladrone Island. He was commander-in-chief of the Pacific squadron till 1904 and was later commander of the Philippine division.

WATCHING THE CANOE PARADE AT LAKEVIEW.

CANOE PARADE

Great Attraction at Lakeview Last Night

The much talked of canoe parade and illumination was held at Lakeview last night and it proved to be such a success that the fondest anticipations of the most enthusiastic workers were fulfilled. There were about four thousand people in attendance they being lined along the water front and on the adjacent plaza surrounding the dance hall.

The decorations about the park and water front, consisting of Japanese lanterns, were very pretty, the rays from the lanterns reflecting through the pine trees on to the water.

In order to keep the spectators in a merry frame of mind the National band, Dick Griffiths, leader, occupied a motor boat and dispensed sweet music. The National quartet rendered vocal selections which were greatly enjoyed.

There were 16 entries in the parade and it could be very plainly seen that many hours of labor must have been spent in fitting out the canoes. The ideas were original and the parade as a whole was unlike the usual run of canoe parades where year after year the same designs are shown.

The majority of the entries were members of the Iroquois canoe club, but other clubs and individuals figured.

The judges wear representatives of L'Etoile, Courier-Citizen, and The Sun, and it was with difficulty that they were able to determine the prize winners.

The first prize was captured by A. J. Lambert, George Lambert, J. Gagnon and George Mothes, whose feature was a "Rococo" hunting scene. Teddy and a companion were the central figures, both being attired in khaki uniforms, sombreroes, carried guns and in fact had all the equipment of a hunter. A dog also occupied a prominent position and in fact the smallest detail was not forgotten.

The second prize went to the Iroquois club, whose representative in the winning canoe was Joseph Kitzredge. The canoe represented Hunter Hill monument, and considerable ingenuity must have been exercised in planning the exhibit so that the light craft should not become topheavy. The entry made a hit with the crowd.

The judges met with large difficulty in determining the winner of third prize. It was finally given to Hervey Cote, however, whose canoe was decorated and gay as a Japanese garden. The decorations were unique and tasteful and deserved the highest praise. Mr. Cote is, like Mr. Kitzredge, a member of the Iroquois club, so that that organization drew $15 out of the decisions $10 for second prize, and $5 for third.

The other two canoes which ran Mr. Cote a close race for third prize were those representing an automobile and the Ferris wheel.

At the conclusion of the parade the Iroquois club held open house and a large number of guests were entertained.

A JAIL SENTENCE

For Man Who Drove Auto Recklessly in Boston

BOSTON, Sept. 2.—A jail sentence for reckless automobile driving was imposed by Judge Murray in the municipal court today upon John T. Fay of 77 East 22nd street, New York. Fay was arrested in Scollay square last night charged with drunkenness and reckless speeding. He was driving his own car, and he had a large amount of money and jewelry about his person. In court today the drunkenness charge was not pressed but on the other charge Judge Murray sentenced Fay to twenty days in jail. Fay appealed and furnished $200 bonds. The courts have almost invariably imposed fines for the offense charged heretofore, but Judge Murray stated that in view of the numerous automobile accidents of late he felt that a jail sentence was necessary as a warning to drivers to be more careful.

ARABS SUSTAINED HEAVY LOSS

PARIS, Sept. 2.—There has been another encounter between French troops and the Arab tribesmen at Beni Is. A despatch from General Billard says the Arabs suddenly attacked the French post yesterday afternoon. The hills surrounding the blackhouse swarmed with Moorish warriors on foot and horseback. The French finally beat off the enemy after the Arabs had sustained heavy losses. The French had two men killed.

IN POLICE COURT

Man Charged With Stealing Cattle

HE INPOUNDED HIS NEIGHBOR'S COWS.

And Claimed Compensation for Having Them—Case Continued—Several Assault Cases Before the Court—Billerica Man Fined for Violating Milk Law.

William Cann was arraigned in police court this morning on a complaint charging him with the larceny of two cows and three calves, the property of Dennis J. O'Brien, of South Chelmsford. The case was a rather peculiar one and Judge Hadley remarked that he was of the opinion that Mr. Cann did not realize how serious an offense he had committed and owing to this fact the case was continued till tomorrow in order to give the man a chance to return the cattle.

Messrs. Cann and O'Brien live within a quarter of a mile of each other in the quiet little village of South Chelmsford, the land of one adjoining that of the other. Last Saturday morning Mr. O'Brien placed two cows and three calves in a pasture. He said that the pasture was strongly fenced and the critters could not get out without human aid. He came to the barn and when he returned at 3.30 that night he was amazed to find that the cows and calves were missing. He searched every nook and corner of the pasture, but the cattle were nowhere in sight.

Later he was informed that his property was stabled in Mr. Cann's premises, but the latter refused to give up the animals unless Mr. O'Brien would turn over $350 for their care. This Mr. O'Brien refused to do, and the result was the hearing in police court this morning.

Mr. O'Brien said that the cows and calves were annoying him and endangering his crops so he locked them up in the barn and thought he was justified in demanding a price for their care. He acknowledged on cross examination that they had done no damage, but he was of the opinion that an ounce of prevention was worth a pound of cure.

The seriousness of the case was laid down by the court and Mr. O'Brien promised to return the cattle.

VIOLATED MILK LAW.

William J. Biggerstaff, of Billerica, was charged with interfering with Frederick S. Marion, of Woburn, a milk inspector, also with violating the milk law by removing the cream from milk. He pleaded guilty and was fined $50 for violating the milk law, while the case of interfering with the officer was placed on the files of the court.

Oscar Jarvis pleaded guilty to being a vagrant and was sent to the state farm.

John Hickey, charged with being drunk, needed a rest and the court sentenced him to 14 days in jail.

A number of cases slated for trial today were continued. The case of John Coskos and Michael Hanna, charged with assault and battery, will be heard on Sept. 9 as will the cases of Diab Miami. The case of Albert River on the same charge, will be heard in court two weeks from today, and William L. Ferris of Draut, charged with being a common drunkard, will appear before the court next Wednesday. Michael Dolan, charged with assault and battery on Charles John, had his case continued till Friday.

There was one 82 drunk and four drunks were released by the probation officer.

FAMOUS PLACE

Old Meeting House at Block Island Burned

BLOCK ISLAND, R. I., Sept. 2.—A mass of smoldering ruins is all that today marks the spot where for a century the historic old meeting house has stood. A fire during the night completely destroyed the structure and it had not been for the able assistance given the fire brigade by the summer visitors, several other buildings in the immediate vicinity of the church would have been destroyed.

Flying sparks from the burning church caused considerable damage to the Central house, Mott's grocery store and several other houses and barns.

FARNHAM RETIRES

Mayor Will Not Run for a Third Term

He Declared Himself This Morning and Leaves the Field to McKinley, Brown and Fiske—Is Walsh Looking for Thompson's Job?

Mayor Farnham will not be a candidate for a third term.

It's a fact, for he himself has said it, and he ought to know.

His Honor informed a reporter of the Sun this morning that after mature deliberation he had decided not to run again but had made no plans as to the future. Mayor Farnham has not named his new private secretary as yet. "I have talked with many in relation to the matter, though there are several applicants," said His Honor.

With Mayor Farnham out of the contest, the republican majority nomination would appear to be between Hon. James McKinley, his neighbor, the Hon. George Brown and the Hon. Josiah Fielding Fiske. Alonzo G. Walsh has been mentioned for the nomination, but the wise ones say he is playing a desperate game.

Mr. Walsh is one of the several thousand original Taft men. He was also a delegate to the republican national convention. He met and became acquainted with the Taft managers, Hon. Butler Ames, the congressman from this district, who heretofore had the naming of the positioners of the fifth district, was strenuously anti-Taft before the convention. In fact he was accused of stirring up an anti-Taft feeling wherever he went and was further accused of conducting convention excursions. If Taft is elected president it would be comparatively an easy matter to override the congressman's choice for postmaster and put in a Taft man as postmaster. Congressman Ames' choice would be Postmaster Thompson, while the Taft man might be A. G. Walsh. You never can tell what will happen in politics. But, of course, if Mr. Walsh were mayor he couldn't very well be postmaster. But Mr. Walsh has not said that he wants to be mayor and probably will not run.

VESSEL PROBABLY IS LOST

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 2.—The bark Auburndale, coal laden, which sailed from Turks island five weeks ago for this port, is missing, and it is feared that the vessel went down off Cape Hatteras during the West Indian hurricane which swept the coast last month. Captain E. B. Haskell had a crew of nine men.

LATEST RETURNS

Show That Prouty's Plurality Will Reach 29,000

WHITE RIVER JUNCTION, Vt.

Sept. 2.—A revised tabulation with the additional returns received today of the vote cast for governor in yesterday's state election with 13 small towns still missing, gives George H. Prouty, republican, 43,043; James E. Burke, democrat, 35,318; Quincy S. Backus, independent league, 12,221; Eugene Campbell, prohibitionist, 891; and P. H. Dunbar, socialist, 465. The missing towns four years ago gave Ball, republican, 2313 and Porter, democrat, 552, and at an early hour today it was estimated that Prouty's plurality in the state would be about 29,000.

With the 13 towns missing the returns show that the republicans had 71 per cent, the democrats 25 per cent, the independent league 2 per cent, the prohibitionists 1-3 per cent, and the socialists two-thirds of one per cent of the total vote cast. The republican plurality of 29,000 compares favorably with previous years, but the republican and democratic votes show a slight falling off from four years ago. The republican decrease amounted to 6 per cent, and the democrats to about 2 per cent. The decrease was surprising in view of the numerous local contests at which the voting was quite heavy. Political leaders were inclined to look upon the returns today as indicating that the voters are somewhat apathetic in regard to national issues but not to a marked degree.

There was considerable interest manifested in the size of the vote of the independence league but it was pointed out that if the vote for Backus came entirely from the democratic party the combined vote of the independent league and the democrats would not have reduced Prouty's plurality below 25,000, the fatal figures. It has been a tradition in Vermont politics that when the republican plurality for governor at the September election preceding that for president falls below 25,000 the democratic ticket won the national contest two months later.

The results of yesterday's election were received by the republican leaders with considerable satisfaction while Lieut. Gov. Prouty expressed himself as highly gratified with the endorsement which he had received at the polls.

Go to Lakeview tomorrow night, band concert.

Hampshire, Ill., Girl Poisoned by Mother

CHICAGO, Sept. 2.—Lena Moran, the second daughter of Mrs. Martha W. Moran, of Hampshire, Ill., woman who poisoned her three children and herself Monday, died yesterday. She is the second victim of the mother. Mrs. Moran and her daughter, a 12-year-old girl, were found in the morning, and the mother was taken to the hospital. The girl died two or three days after the mother's death. The mother's child, George, two months old, died after the poisoning.

HEARING ON CHARGES

Against Hersey and Donovan Postponed by Request

The hearing of charges preferred against Patrolmen Charles H. Hersey and Daniel C. Donovan, which was scheduled to take place before the police board last night, was postponed, as predicted in yesterday's issue of The Sun. The date of the hearing will be decided by the board.

When the meeting was called to order the court room was well filled with people. Chairman Stearns announced that it was customary when a hearing was given on charges preferred against an officer to give the officer the choice of a public or private hearing.

Lawyer William H. Bent, who appeared for Patrolman Hersey, informed the board that before proceeding with the hearing he had some preliminary motions to make. He then read the complaint against Patrolman Hersey, charging that on Saturday evening, Aug. 22, that officer assaulted and roughly treated, and without just cause handcuffed the defendant, George Massini, and took him in the patrol wagon to the police station, where he passed the night. Further, the complaint charges that Officer Hersey used profane and indecent language, and threatened the defendant, and that he was guilty of neglect of duty in his failure to arrest a man named Donovan, who had held up and robbed the defendant of certain papers.

The complaint of Elijah Tejerian is the same, except that the charge of threatening is omitted.

Mr. Bent moved that the complaint be dismissed, alleging that the charges are frivolous, and on the ground that they are not verified by the oath of the complainant; that the charges are vague and indefinite, and are not accompanied by specifications. He quoted rule 19 of the police board's manual, to prove his contention that the board has no authority to try an officer under the charges as framed, inasmuch as they are not verified by oath of the complainant, hearing merely the form of an acknowledgment of a deed. Also, he said, copies of the charges have been furnished the defendant, but there are no specifications.

Daniel J. Donovan, who appeared for Patrolman Donovan, asked that the charges against his client be dismissed on the grounds as covered by Lawyer Bent. Dennis J. Murphy, counsel for the complainants, argued that the statement quoted had nothing to do with the case at that stage of the proceedings; that it merely refers to the rights of the officer, after a hearing had been given. He said that the charges were sufficiently specific to allow the men to make their defense. He further added that he did not intend to furnish defense for his brother lawyers.

The board considered the matter and decided to defer the hearing and confer with counsel with a view to determining a line of action that would be satisfactory to all concerned.

The following minor licenses were granted at the executive session:

Common victuallers—Frank H. Carr, 11 Lawrence street; Nelson C. Hill, 510 Varnum avenue; Lewis Valley, 190 Market street; George S. Emery, 556 Varnum avenue; C. G. W. C. T. U. MEETING.

There will be a meeting of the members of the W. C. T. U. Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock. All are requested to be present and especially those who are on the committee for the convention to be held here in October.

ade being the leading feature of the encampment, many poets timed their arrival for that event and the crowd of visitors was augmented by thousands during the night. The day had been proclaimed a holiday by the mayor and the majority of the business places as well as all public offices were closed.

The long and wearing delay at various points of mobilization while waiting for the proper place to fall in discouraged some of the more feeble veterans and they joined the spectators. It was well towards 11 o'clock when the van of the parade marched past the reviewing stand where they were saluted with a bombardment of flowers for which surprise the women of Toledo had been preparing for some days. They emerged from the floral shower to be greeted by an immense human flag made up of nearly three thousand children, who in their dresses of red, white and blue swayed their bodies so that the emblem seemed to sway as in a breeze. The old soldiers saluted the picture with many a wave of hat or hand and hummed as they marched the patriotic songs the children sang.

First in line came a squad of mounted police followed by the marshal of the parade, W. M. McMaken and his staff. Next was a brass band followed by Commander-in-Chief Burton under escort of the Toledo post and past commander-in-chief and invited guests in carriages. In the order given following came the parade of the various states in the order of seniority: Illinois, Wisconsin, Pennsylvania, New York, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, New Jersey, Maine, California, Nevada, Rhode Island, New Hampshire and Vermont, department of the Potomac, Virginia and North Carolina, Maryland, Nebraska, Michigan, Iowa, Indiana, Colorado and Wyoming, Kansas, Delaware, Minnesota, Missouri, Oregon, Kentucky, West Virginia, South Dakota, Washington and Alaska, Arkansas, New Mexico, Utah, Tennessee, Louisiana and Mississippi, Florida, Texas, Montana, Idaho, Arizona, Georgia and South Carolina, Alabama, North Dakota, Oklahoma and Ohio. Then came the Association of Ex-Prisoners of War and the battle-lag division. At the rendezvous points of the various departments coffee and sandwiches were served to the waiting veterans, and those who desired to do so were allowed to carry away the cups as souvenirs.

Long before the parade started the streets were packed with humanity to a degree which made it almost impossible to move along the sidewalks. Every window along the profusely decorated streets was filled. Local newspapers estimate that including the veterans and their women folk there were 15,000 in the city. Illinois with the large representation led the other departments eight abreast.

FAR FROM HOME

Young Englishman Says
He is "Broke"

SEATTLE, Sept. 2.—Five thousand miles from home, practically without funds, and searching for a man whose name he never heard and whose address is a mystery, is the position to which P. H. Wingrove of London found himself when he awakened in Seattle. The young Englishman is here looking for a cousin of S. T. Letbridge of London, whose name and address he carelessly forgot to learn before starting west.

"Stupid mistake. Horribly silly of me," commented Wingrove. "You know father cabled me to go to Seattle and visit Letbridge's cousin. I was in Ogden, Utah, at the time. Father was probably in a hurry and didn't tell me the name. I have never thought about finding it out until I reached here." And then Wingrove laughed.

Father called me 250 to come from Ogden here. He probably thought the cities were about 50 miles apart. I used up most of the money for transportation and now I'm what you Americans call 'broke'. Awfully funny, don't you think?"

"You had better cable London and find out the name of the man you are seeking," advised the reporter.

"Bully good idea," exclaimed Wingrove. "Strange I didn't think of it before. And then the young man from the night late and started for a telephone office."

Mr. Watson sets forth that the copy which was delivered to him "is not an individual Star copy," and that the copy was not and is not accompanied by nor does it contain a commendatory autograph, or any autographic, letter of Theodore Roosevelt, and was of much less value than it would have been if it had been as agreed by the plaintiff.

REV. FR. VIAUD, O. M. I.

Tendered Reception by L'Association Catholique

And Presented With Valuable Gifts for Altar—Fr. Ronan Will Be Presented a Chalice

A farewell reception was tendered to Rev. Victor Viaud, O. M. I., who leaves St. Joseph's parish next Sunday to become assistant rector of the new parish of Notre Dame-de-Lourdes by L'Association Catholique, of which he has been chaplain for the past four years in C. M. A. C. hall, last evening.

President Homer L. P. Turbette, presided over the exercises and nearly 200 members were present. Rev. Fr. Dubreuil, O. M. I., rector of Notre Dame-de-Lourdes, and Rev. Fr. Ouellette, O. M. I., who takes Fr. Viaud's place as chaplain of L'Association Catholique, accompanied Fr. Viaud in the hall.

President Turbette paid an eloquent tribute to the retiring chaplain and spoke words of welcome to his successor. He then presented Fr. Viaud with a beautiful gold chalice, two gold candlesticks and a sanctuary gong. Fr. Viaud responded gracefully and told of his pleasant relations with the society. Rev. Fr. Dubreuil and Ouellette also spoke after Fr. Viaud, as well as Henry Achin, Jr., J. E. L. Michaud, Joseph Broves, Eugene G. Roussin, Joseph L. Lamoureux and Henry Achin, Sr. There were readings also by George E. Poirier and Henri Daigle. Refreshments were served, and the pleasant affair closed with cheers for Rev. Frs. Viaud, Dubreuil and Ouellette.

The committee in charge consisted of Henry Barry, chairman; Oviil Morin, Eugene Savard, Arthur Genest, Almeric Jellier, Arthur Lusier, Henry Achin, Jr., Joseph Richard, Ed. Bergeron. Mr. Barry was the chief organizer of the affair.

ST. PETER'S FETE.
The men's committee in charge of the lawn party of St. Peter's parish and testimonial to Rev. Michael Ronan, pastor of St. Peter's held a well attended meeting at the fair hall, Gormon street last evening. Hon. James B. Casey presided and reports of the different sub-committees were heard. The entertainment committee reported its intention of presenting Fr. Ronan a beautiful gold chalice and a memorial tablet suitably engraved. The full committee unanimously adopted the recommendation of the sub-committee in this respect. The presentation address for the chalice will be made by Prof. Hugh J. Molloy, while the memorial will be presented by Hon. James B. Casey.

It was reported that the illumination will be on an elaborate scale. The sports committee reported that an additional team has entered for the three-legged race. John F. Sadlier, was chosen chairman of the refreshment committee in the absence of the regular chairman. The committees will meet again Friday evening at the grounds, Washington park.

KING ELECTED MANAGER.

At the regular meeting of the Y. M. C. A. last evening, Mr. William King was elected manager of the football team. Final arrangements were made for the coming to be conducted in the near future. Much routine business was transacted, and several members addressed the meeting.

ARTISANS' RECEPTION.

The Pawtucketville Artisans tendered a reception last night to Enclide Cinq-Mars, general delegate from the five Lowell Artisans branches to the recent convention held in Montreal. The reception took place at the Pawtucketville Social club. There were speeches and a game of cards, and refreshments were served. Mr. Cinq-Mars gave an interesting and detailed account of the convention.

BIG MOTOR RACE

Great Event Has Developed Mammoth Proportions

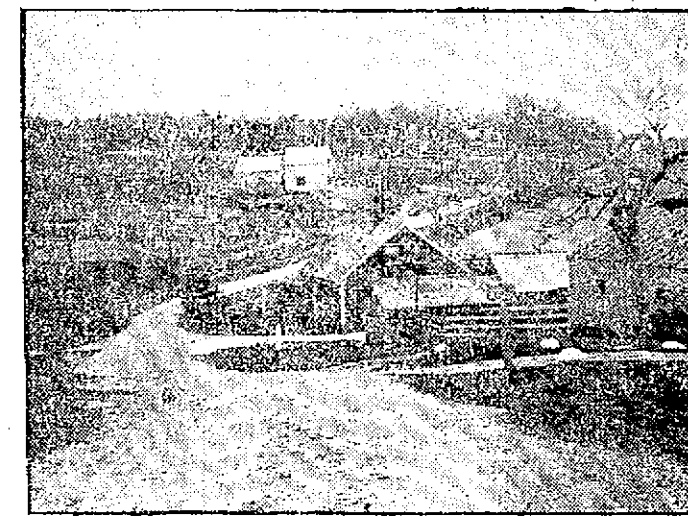

Looking through the witch's glass into the very near future a great crowd is seen in Lowell. It is Labor day and the transportation companies are at their wits' end to care for travel. Two people are flocking in from all parts and the city is crowded. The banks of the Merrimack river, a river made famous in song and story, are lined with human faces, for the big motor race is on; the biggest affair of its kind ever witnessed in this section of the country.

That is what the witch's glass pictures for Labor day—next Monday, and from all appearances it would seem that the glass is properly presaging for the interest in the great race is accumulating faster than the cold of the millenium. It is almost superfluous to refer to the magnitude of the proposition because the newspapers have already conveyed the impression, but as a matter of fact the thing has assumed proportions greater than even that energetic, electrifying, progressive and magnificent wizard, John O. Heinze, over dreamed of.

NO SPEEDING ALLOWED.

Today we propose to deal with a plain explanatory story of the race in order that there may be answered completely the questions that come to us over the telephone at the rate of "stagn" a minute.

The one thing that Mr. Heinze asked the writer to most particularly emphasize today had to do with speeding on the race course from now to the time that the bombs announcing "race over" have been exploded. Here are Mr. Heinze's words as near as we remember them: "Every automobile that is caught speeding over the course at a clip faster than is allowed by the state law will be pulled up and made to settle before the courts. From now on special officers will be stationed along the course, and I wish that you, through your paper, would give the public fair warning. This applies to the racers as well as to the tourist. Our track or speeding hours are from four to six in the morning. I was on the course this morning at four o'clock, and the drivers of the racers understood that if caught speeding after six o'clock they will be disqualified for the race. I was obliged this morning to threaten to dis-

FACTS ABOUT THE RACE.
The race course will be closed to the public after 5 o'clock on the morning of the day of the race and the only avenue open to traffic after that hour will be by way of the overhead bridge now being constructed in Dunbar avenue. This bridge is being built to accommodate not only motorists but teams and automobiles. By way of the bridge persons on foot or in vehicles can cross over from Magnolia street to the truck road on the boulevard as far as the pumping station and this way will be open all hours. The racing machines will pass under the bridge.

ABOUT FREE ADMITTANCE.
A great deal has been said and a great many questions have been asked relative to a general admission fee and to charge a general admission fee would be far from a popular or advisable thing to do. Asked today what the club intended to do about it, Mr. Heinze said that a general admission fee, which would mean a "stand up seat" on the bank of the river, of 25 cents, had been suggested, but that the same would not be collected unless the club found it absolutely necessary.

"If to defray expenses," he said, "we find that it will be necessary to charge a general admission fee, then it will be imposed, but we hope to be able to get along without it."

SOME BIG PRIZES.
To the automobile company represented by the car that finishes first will go the Butler Ames $1000 trophy, designed by Tiffany, and to the driver of the car that finishes first will go a $500 cash prize. The driver of the car to finish second will receive $250 and the driver of the car to finish third $150.

FOOD AND AMUSEMENTS.

There will be food and refreshment booths along the race course; booths where sandwiches, ices, popcorn, chips and other things will be sold and all vendors must be supplied with official badge. Official programs and score cards will be sold at different points and will be sold, also, by ushers.

CHAIN POSE FIDO.

The race management most earnestly requests that persons owning dogs and living along the border lines of the course, especially in Varnum avenue, to have their canines securely chained during the hours that the race will be in session. A dog is the one thing that the race driver most fears, not the dread of the dog's bite but the fourth fear that he will get in the way and to strike a dog would mean, nine times in ten, a spill that would spoil the race. The men who will police the course are armed with the authority to shoot all dogs that show up on the highway.

WILL USE MEGAPHONES.

The position of the cars during the race will be announced by megaphones that will be used by the patrol along the course. "Race coming" will be the call of the patrolmen and they will serve notice on the spectators to stand back and well away from the course. The patrol will use red and white flags, the red, of course, denoting danger, which would mean the approach of a car.

The race will start with a cannon boom and bombs will be exploded at four points along the course and at each of the four points where the bombs will be exploded there will be stationed, medical men, judges, telephones and all that is necessary for quick relief and application.

Those wishing to go to the Country club in automobiles will have to show a special badge and they will be allowed over the course until 8 o'clock. After that they will have to use the other side of the river road leaving the exclusive use of these certain highways on Labor day and if anybody ushers himself in, the club will not be responsible. The success of the affair will be due in a great measure to the assistance that the police and others in authority will receive at the hands of the public in general, and it was announced today that those desirous of crossing the race course between the hours of 5 and 10 o'clock will be permitted to do so providing their mission is a very urgent one and then they must be armed with a special permit from the Lowell Automobile club. Their reason for crossing, however, must be a very serious one.

THE CHOSEN FEW.

The only automobiles allowed to pass over the course during the race hours will be those containing the referee and the chief surgeon, and these cars will carry official flags. The chief surgeon's car will bear the red cross insignia.

The race, as has already been stated, will start promptly at 10 o'clock, and will be over when the third car crosses the finishing line. Only one car will be signalled that the race is over and when the "all over" bombs have been exploded the highways will be open to the public.

TWO BANDS WILL PLAY.

At each end of the big grand stand a full-dress band will be stationed, and the day will be enlivened by music. The first place by the band is "Hail to the Color," and the inspiration of that air will reach the multitude at 10 o'clock sharp. The management suggests that persons desiring parking space should be on the scene as early as possible, and the management earnestly requests that persons keep away from the tire controls of the different cars. Tire controls is the term that the professionals use, and they mean plain platforms along the course where tires and other accessories for the different cars are on the keep away from these platforms and avoid trouble.

AVOID THE RUSH.

Whatever may be the general impression as to the crowds that will gather in Lowell on Labor day, the race management professes to believe that at least 50,000 people will come to see the big event. The Lowell public is requested to come early and avoid the rush, as it is expected that the hours approaching the hour for the opening of the race will see many people from out of town, and seats in street cars will be at a premium. We publish this just to give you some idea of the expectations of the management.

ACCOMMODATIONS FOR SPECTATORS.

A contract for the installation of toilets at the grand stands was awarded yesterday to Farrell & Conant. In one stand six will be supplied for women and at another stand the same number will be put in place for men. The toilets will require 110 feet of pipe.

BOSTON WELL ADVERTISED.

The race promoters are doing more advertising out of town than at home. Besides using the newspapers in Boston, the race is being advertised by a four-horse float setting forth the magnitude of the race.

The local militia officers met at the armory last night and made plans for the patrolling of the course on the day of the race. The companies will be recruited for the day, up to 112 men each. This will, of course, include the regular militia and specially hired patrolmen.

The local companies will retain their official names and will be assigned as follows: K, from Hallowell curve to Country club, on boulevard C, at grand stand and on boulevard G, between the outposts of K and C. A detachment of 50 men will be on the back road, as will the members of Company M and of Company L of the Eighth regiment, Lawrence. The non-coms in all companies will wear khaki shirts and old fatigue caps. In all about 500 men will be used on the course.

There will be another meeting of the officers in charge of the course on Friday night, at the armory.

RACE WILL START AT 10 SHARP.

The race will start at ten sharp, and the start will be announced by cannon. There are nine entries up to the present time, and two more are expected. The race will start on the morning of Monday, and Mr. Heinze gave as his opinion today that the race would occupy about five hours. Once started, the drivers will be left to their own free will or destruction except that in the race they must not pass one another at any point where the road is less than 25 feet wide. Some have the impression that the race is purely and simply a matter of time and that the winner will be the car that finishes first. While it is a race against time, it is also a "really and truly" race. It is not to be expected that the car to start first will be first again at the starting point—not by any means. The desire to pass the fellow in front is the desire that consumes the driver and urges him on to the limit of his speed endurance. It is expected that the car will be passing the fellow in front because of an attempt at passing on the back road would be a bit dangerous.

USHERS WANTED.

PROKOS-PROKOS

Greek Wrestlers Have Lively Practice Bout

Big Jim Prokos and Young (Chris) Prokos had a practice bout last evening in which the pair went at it hammer and tongs for nearly an hour. A week ago Young Prokos threw Jim in a practice match and the latter attempted to show him last night that the first fall was a mistake. He was unable to put his lighter opponent down, however, while Young Prokos was unable to secure a fall. The fact that Young Prokos is able to handle the big fellow has given his stock a great boom and his admirers are confident that he will defeat Fritz Hansen. The latter who is training in Fitchburg will come here tomorrow accompanied by a large delegation of sports and a considerable amount of money to bet on their husky Swede. The men will weigh in at 6 o'clock at the Y. M. C. A. and are under forfeit to weigh in at 148 pounds or under. The bout will take place in Associate hall and will be preceded by preliminaries.

AUTOMOBILE NEWS

"There is no question but that there will be considerable improvement as time goes on in all types of motor cars," says H. E. Coffin, vice-president of the Chalmers-Detroit concern. "The gasoline driven machine will be no exception. There will be from year to year betterments and improvements in many details. Our knowledge of the gas engine is still far from perfect. The standard engine we have had with us for the better part of a century and yet one can scarcely pick up an engineering journal without reading of some experiment or test which has developed new knowledge upon the subject. It is not reasonable to suppose, therefore, that the gas engine can within ten years become a perfect mechanism. Unfortunately, also, up to the present time men who have been most thoroughly acquainted with gas engine construction operation have been so busy along manufacturing lines as to be unable to devote much of their time and energy to the development of the finer points of the art. The well designed gas engine has reached a stage which we may term 'commercial perfection' and we should use even this term advisedly and with reservation. The next few years will unquestionably see marked improvements both in the internal combustion motor itself and its various accessories."

Proof that the automobile is supplanting the burro as a means of transportation in the mountains of Colorado has been furnished by H. E. English of Greeley. He says he has driven a Rambler automobile 150 miles up into the mountains to Horse Shoe park, 9,000 feet above sea level. A burro was taken along to be used in case of emergency and the Rambler made the climb without difficulty. The steepest grade was 35 per cent. The car carried five persons, with provisions and camping outfit, making a total weight of 1,600 pounds. Gasoline consumption amounted to twenty gallons, and the only accident was one puncture.

The Los Angeles county assessors office filed the valuation of automobiles filed there at $14,055,858, and that of the horses of the county at $1,356,500.

This is by far the largest net average circulation of any newspaper in Lowell.

Mayor Farnham will not again be a candidate for mayor. Has he seen the writing on the wall?

The prospects for the success of the great auto race are daily improving. It will undoubtedly be one of the greatest races ever held in this country.

Judging from their pictures as printed in the newspapers, Mr. Bryan and Henry D. Clayton, who manages his campaign, can hardly be distinguished apart. They are moreover great admirers of each other, but no doubt when seen in the flesh there is no such close resemblance between the two men.

THE VERMONT SLUMP.

Vermont's republican slump has cast consternation into the republican camp. The plurality is the smallest since 1892, when Cleveland was elected. This will be taken as an indication that Bryan will be elected.

In 1892 the republican plurality was 21,669; in 1896, it was 40,490; in 1900, the figures were 29,710; in 1904, it reached the normal republican majority of 30,682, but in the present year the decline to 28,000, a decrease of eight per cent, is regarded as an ill omen for the G. O. P.

BANKS AND THEIR METHODS.

The banks of the country in their relation to business have been aptly likened to the heart and arteries of the human body.

That simile was well applied, no doubt, while prosperity reigned, and the banks were ready to let out their money on good security.

Of late, however, it would seem that if the banks represent the business heart, we are suffering from a species of heart disease that might be termed the "closing up of the ventricles and the consequent lack of circulation in the arteries."

Banks have in their power to make business good or to keep things at a standstill. If they loan money on good security to legitimate enterprises they will help business. If they refuse to do this and close up their coffers as if fearing some financial crisis that would swamp their treasuries, they will injure business.

The banker who wants to do all in his power to help business will not refuse credit when the security is all right. He will, however, refuse credit beyond the borrower's apparent ability to pay and in this he is right.

But it is a well known fact that some banks during the recent panic and money stringency were guilty of the worst kind of hoarding. They have not yet quite recovered from their scare and as a result it has been very difficult to get loans for building purposes, while many manufacturing industries have found great difficulty in getting the money to pay their help. All this is due to the disposition of the banks to guard against possible contingencies in the nature of "runs" or other financial crises that might call for prompt payment of deposits.

The banks considered first and last their own interests while some of them took what appears to be unnecessary precautions against failure.

It is time that the banks loosened up and displayed more confidence in the future of business. While they hang back business will move very slowly towards the normal.

By some it is asserted that the most timid bank is the safest, but there is such a thing as excessive timidity. The system of currency, however, is at fault when it happens that the banks are afraid or unable to give out money enough to supply the ordinary needs of business. The element of elasticity has not been provided, and until this fault is properly remedied, we presume it is useless to blame the banks for taking unusual precautions for their own safety.

It is gratifying to know that the business depression has wiped out many dishonest banks throughout the country, banks that were not above using their power to squeeze business men in order to take over the property of the latter at much less than its actual value. Unfortunately, however, some highly reputable banks were forced to the wall through a variety of adverse circumstances.

Lowell has been fortunate in passing through the financial crisis without any bank failures. Her banks have at all times been amply able to meet all their obligations.

Lowell will go some on Labor day.

You can't help loving the fellow who tries to minimize your faults.

That German code is rather hard to interpret on the subject of marriage. Particularly that section which provides that, in case both parties do not belong to the same country, the marriage shall be invalid as to each, by the law of the state to which he or she belongs. On that principle, if the man was a German and the woman was French, the man might be married to the woman all right, but the woman might not be necessarily married to the man.

A preacher from New Zealand has been telling men in Indiana to tattoo their wives on the chin, so as to make them immune to the divorce habit. That might have the desired effect, if feasible, but what would the wives be doing while the tattooing was in process?

The young man and the girl were standing outside the front door having a final chat after his evening call. He was leaning against the doorpost, talking in low tones. Presently the young lady looked round to discover her father in the doorway clad in a dressing gown.

"Why, father, what in the world is the matter?" she inquired.
"John," said the father, addressing himself to the young man, "you know I have never complained about your staying late, and I'm not going to complain of that now; but for goodness' sake stop leaning against the door post and let the rest of the family get some sleep."

Comparatively few of our public men now wear beards. Of the seven candidates for president this year six have smooth-shaven countenances and Mr. Taft wears only a mustache. Out of 104 members of congress who were photographed some time ago, only 10 had beards. The fashion of beardlessness is now also finding a steady increase of favor among the American rank and file.

The Japanese tattooer, in his tent on the beach, shook his head.

"No, miss, I really wouldn't," he said. "If this young man should die or go back on you, it wouldn't be pleasant to have his initials on your arm. If A. R. L. came to die, how would you explain those letters to C. C.?"

"That's so," said the girl. "I hadn't thought of that. Suppose you make a blue butterfly," said the Oriental. "You see, with men it doesn't so much matter. Dear, dear, I've seen men with as many as five or thirty girls' initials and full names tattooed all over them. But in the case of a girl!"

"Yes, by all means, make it a blue butterfly," she said, very firmly.

The following is inscribed on an Elks' card that I picked up on the steps leading to the city hall, yesterday:
WHAT THEY ARE.
The Elks are not an insurance or assessment organization. They are the clan whose blood circulates. Their cardinal virtues are to aid the sick, bury the dead and infect sunshine into the dark places. They are not saints—simply distributors of practical Christianity. There are no Elks in Peter's Fields or County Strand. They live by the way and lead unto the Lord, for they give unto the poor. Their mission is to do good. There are no hungry Elks.The faults of our brothers we write upon the sands;
Their virtues upon the tablets of love and memory.

The campaign orator is a wholesome lesson in loyalty, says Appletons. To him there is nothing so great as this splendid country, nothing so beautiful as the starry flag that waves "on high," nothing so inspiring as the words of "The Star Spangled Banner"—none of which he can repeat.

He calls the army and the navy the "bulwarks of our liberty," and the soldiers "our gallant boys in blue." It doesn't matter much that they wear brown these days. "Blue" sounds better, besides, if he were to speak of "boys in brown," some one might think he meant one of those distinguished fellow-pearl-divers, the Philinos, or worse still, the gallant soldiers of Brownsville.

To hear him speak one would naturally infer that he had been one of the first to enlist in the late war with Spain, and one is somewhat surprised to learn that he was busy saving the country here at home during those troublous times. He was one of those who sat on the fence and yelled "Give 'em hell, boys!" when the soldiers marched by.

PEOPLE OF NOTE

A coming wedding will be that of Miss Edith Holt of New York city, the daughter of Henry Holt, the publisher, and one of the incorporators of the New York Association for the Blind, and Dr. Joseph Colt Bloodgood of Baltimore, associate professor of surgery at Johns Hopkins university, one of the best known surgeons in the country.

Professor J. B. E. Jonas, professor of German at Brown university, has gone abroad to spend his thirtieth year in study and research in Germany. Professor Jonas expects to spend most of the winter in research among certain valuable manuscripts in the Royal library at Berlin. He will make a special study of the poems of the middle high German of the period of 1250, a body of literature which he says has unfortunately been little exploited thus far. He expects to make extensive extracts from these manuscripts with a view to their ultimate publication. Professor Jonas will also study in the University of Berlin and spend some time in travel among the northern states of Germany.

Rex Beach is back in New York after his summer of hunting in the far north. In witness of the affliction that attacked his eyes and frightened his friends through exaggerated reports, Mr. Beach is wearing blue glasses, but he has nothing but cheerful words for the trip and what it brought him. There were more than a few big bears and a good bit of rare game and the rest of the story is yet to be told.

The membership of the British Wesleyan conference this year included a cabinet minister, a peer, ten baronets and knights, nine members of the house of commons. The bishops of Hull and Beverly and the Dean of York visited the conference; the archbishops of Canterbury and York sent greetings; the lord mayor of London and other mayors listened to the conference sermon.

Professor Rufus L. Cole of Johns Hopkins university has declined an invitation to succeed Dr. George Dock in the chair of medicine at the University of Michigan. It was said that Dr. Cole was to become director of the new Rockefeller Research hospital in New York City.

SALEM MAN ADVERTISES FOR THEM AT WATERBURY, CONN.

WATERBURY, Conn., Sept. 2.—When George Crosby of Salem, Mass., landed here Monday he thought he'd have nothing to do but find his wife visiting with friends, but he forgot their names and address. Yesterday afternoon he inserted an advertisement to find his family, letting his mail go to Box D 18. Mr. Crosby said it was an embarrassing position, this losing a wife and several children, and it was especially important that he go to New York in the morning and that he see his wife before he went, as he might not come back for months.
Nearly a dozen people are now advising him and he is certain of success in the morning before the 11 o'clock train he would like to go on leaves.

TALK OF ALLIANCE

With China Has Aroused Jealousy of Japan

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—Discussion in London, Paris and New York as to conditions that might arise in the event of an alliance between the United States and China seem to have been taken seriously in the orient. Recent dispatches from Peking hint at the possibility of Minister Wu Ting Fang being recalled because of remarks attributed to him concerning an alliance. Baron Takahira of Japan visited President Roosevelt at Oyster Bay, and is said to have discussed the alliance talk and the presence of the United States fleet in the Pacific.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

AND THIS FROM SHERMAN.

Fall River Globe: "Mr. Bryan," says Mr. Sherman, "insults the people when he says they do not rule." But what was Mr. Sherman doing to the people when he was acting as Uncle Joe's chore boy and assisting his boss in thwarting their wishes? Adding injury to insult, apparently.

MR. CLEVELAND'S ADVICE.

Worcester Post: "What is the best principle and what the best policy to give the democratic party new life?"
"As a general proposition I might answer this question by saying that in my opinion this could be most surely brought about by a return to genuine democratic doctrine and a close adherence to the democratic policies which in times past gave our party success and benefited our people."
"To be more specific in my reply, I should say that more than ever just at this time the democratic party should display honest and sincere conservatism, a regard for constitutional limitations and a determination not to be swept from our moorings by temporary clamor or spectacular exploitation.""Our people need rest and peace and reassurance, and it will be quite in line with true democracy and successful policy to impress upon our fellow-countrymen the fact that democracy still stands for those things."
Grover Cleveland's last public utterance.

ENFEEBLING SCHOOL METHODS.

Fall River Herald: The Boston Transcript says the enfeeblement of educational methods is due to the increasing number of women teachers and the passing of the New England schoolmaster adding "less kindergarten and more men." The way to settle it is to provide hobbles and raise salaries to man's size.

WANT TO BE LET ALONE.

New York Times: "We still have hope," said Theodore P. Shonts, president of the Interborough and of the Lower East, Chicago and Alton, speaking of the railroads, "that we are going to be let alone and allowed to run our own business." That will depend largely upon the railroads themselves. They will not be let alone and allowed to run their own business as they have been doing for many years, because the people demand a change for the better, voluntary or enforced.

THE MAN WHO SHIRKS.

Lawrence Eagle: Those who are ever ready to do their part in the work of the world—whether it be industrial, benevolent or religious—the shirker is a very unattractive person. The shirker is the one who fails to do his work as he knows it ought to be done; who looks upon his share of the work and claims full time and wages for both. The shirker then is found in the one who does not do the little and the little that duty calls for in his work; the one who, with ample gifts and abundant material means does not respond to the voice of duty when it calls in unmitigated tones; the one who renders duty in small things or great, with full knowledge that he ought to do the things that he leaves undone, whether small or great. The shirker, who is just a shirker.

BARELY BURNED.

Woman Was Preparing Meal When She Met With Accident.

SANDFORD, Me., Sept. 2.—Through the explosion of an alcohol stove Mrs. Marion Hamilton of this town was so dangerously burned that Dr. S. C. Hill, her physician, says he does not think she will recover.

Mrs. Hamilton has roomed in Fogg's block, and was preparing her breakfast when the stove exploded, setting her dress afire. She rushed into the offices of the New England Telephone & Telegraph Company all ablaze. The night operator put out the burning clothing with water and quilts, but not until Mrs. Hamilton had been severely burned on her back, arms and legs. Mrs. Hamilton's brother-in-law, S. K. Hamilton, is a resident of Boston.

HENRY B. EVANS, South Hadley, brother of Miss Evans.
DEER ISLE, Me., Sept. 2.—Seven

summer people out of a party of 10 were drowned by the capsizing of a 35-foot sloop in Penobscot bay off this island yesterday.

The bodies of Lottie Kellogg and Miss Evans were recovered. There was some hope that Mr. Hutchins had been saved. When last seen he was making a brave struggle through the choppy seas toward Barren Island, nearly 40 miles from the mainland.

With Capt. Samuel Haskell the party of gay summer people started out yesterday afternoon for a sail in Penobscot bay. It was drawing near the close of the vacation season for some of them and they had planned this as their last outing together.

The wind was fresh from the southwest, kicking up a good sea and promising exhilarating sport for the party of merrymakers. The sloop was of the "open" variety, that is, it had no forward and no cabin, as many of the small Maine boats have, and it contained no ballast, as the party of 10 weighed the boat down quite heavily.

With Capt. Haskell, an experienced navigator in these waters, thought the human ballast sufficient.

The party had scarcely been gone an hour before the wind freshened up, heeling the sloop well over and dashing the spray upon the occupants.

much to their glee. There was no thought of danger until the afternoon was drawing to a close, when Capt. Haskell decided that the wind was too heavy for his boat and the sea too choppy, so he brought the boat around and started a tack homeward.

All of the party were perched high up on the weather side, as the sloop cut through the waves with the water almost coming over the gunwales on the lee side.

When Capt. Haskell gave a shout of warning that he was going to tack, and then threw over the tiller. Just at this moment the boat rose high up on a wave, exposing her to the full brunt of the wind. An unusually heavy gust struck her and in a twinkling the sloop was over on her beam ends and the party of 10 was in the water.

For one brief moment it was every one for one's self. Capt. Haskell, however, took in the situation in one quick glance. He had been clinging to the sheet and his tenacious hold had not been loosened by the sudden plunge into the ice-cold waters of the Maine coast. He saw that the boat's tender was still right side up, and shouting to Prof. Crawley and Henry Evans, who were nearest to him, he directed them to make for the tender, doing so at the same time himself.

Prof. Crawley, however, still clung to the overturned sloop, looking for his wife, while Evans was trying vainly to locate his sister.

In the meantime Capt. Haskell had gained the tender and clambered aboard. Cutting it loose from the overturned sloop he picked up the oars and, bringing the boat up near Crawley and Evans, helped them aboard, persuading them that the only way they could help the women was from the rowboat. But even then the women were beyond help. Weighted down by their water-soaked clothes and chilled through to the marrow by the cold waters, they had been unable to keep themselves afloat.

Some of them had grabbed the person nearest them by the neck and in some instances they had gone down together, clasped in each other's arms.

The three men in the tender found that they were almost as incapable of giving assistance in their boat as they had been in the water. The wind was too high and the sea too rough for them to handle the small boat. They were in grave danger themselves of being thrown once more into the water.

The upset, however, had been seen from Eagle Island, not far from the accident, and as soon as possible a sloop was sent out to pick up the survivors. They reached the tender just in time and pulled the three exhausted men aboard. Of the rest of the party but two were in sight and the boat was headed for them. They were the bodies of Lottie Kellogg and Miss Evans. They were unconscious, and although the rescuers worked vigorously over them all efforts to restore life failed.

The boat was well back on its way to the island before the fate of Hutchins was recalled. Then some one remembered that he had seen Hutchins swimming strongly for Barren Island. It was too late then to change the boat's course, for by that time the young man had either gone to the bottom or had managed to reach the rocks, and the survivors already in the boat were urgently in need of attention.

Hutchins was a student in the Bangor Theological seminary, and had been filling one of the pulpits on Deer Isle for the summer. A boat was sent to hunt for him as soon as the survivors reached land.

The boat returned unsuccessful last evening. It is now practically certain that Hutchins sank before he could reach the rocks of the island. It was a long swim against wind and sea, and unencumbered as he was by his clothes, Hutchins' chance of reaching safely was exceedingly slim. A lookout was kept up and down the coast for bodies.

A BILLERICA MAN.
Jason Herbert Hutchins, who lost his life in the drowning accident off Deer Isle yesterday, was a member of the senior class of the Bangor Theological seminary and considered an exceptionally brilliant student. He was 26 years old and engaged to Miss Dorothea Beach, only daughter of Pres. David Nelson Beach of the seminary, now with the family in their summer home at Kinco.

His home was in Billerica, Mass., where he leaves a father and mother. He was some time in the employ of Fields & Cowles of Boston. He was acting as pastor of the church at Sunset, a settlement on Deer Isle, for the summer.

AN INDIAN BOY
SERVING LIFE SENTENCE GETS PARDON

WASHINGTON, Sept. 2.—The President has ordered the pardon of William Judge, a Cherokee Indian boy serving a life sentence at Fort Leavenworth for murder.

Charlie Sunday, another Cherokee boy was Judge's rival, and Caroline Goings, the belle of the Indian village in the territory, was the object of their affections. Sunday's body was fished out of the Illinois river, and the physicians said that certain finger marks around his neck proved that he was strangled to death. A number of witnesses testified that they had heard Judge declare he would "do away with Sunday," and the girl in the case swore that he had assured her that she would never see Sunday again.

All this happened early in 1902. Since then a number of the witnesses have experienced a change of heart, and Judge's friends have produced proof of perjury sufficient to convince the President and attorney-general that the prisoner is entitled to a pardon.

HOUSE ENTERED

Thieves have been at work in this city of late and while many breaks have been reported to the police, the public has heard little of the burglaries that have been committed. A couple of weeks ago the residence of Fred H. Hayward of 7 Sanborn street was broken into and considerable valuables, including silverware worth $200, taken.

Mr. Hayward, who is the manager of the M. Steinert & Sons Co. in this city, with his family, was in Beantown, and his nearest neighbor was also away. When Mr. Hayward returned to this city Sunday night he discovered that his silverware, including costly wedding presents of tableware and ornaments, had been taken by thieves, who effected an entrance through a parlor window.

Nor a single silver article on the lower floor of the house remained to the family. Mr. Hayward, who had never in the past taken unusual precautions with his property, had left the silverware in its accustomed place and the thieves had evidently found no trouble in discovering it.

Every drawer in any desk or sideboard on the lower floor of the house had been ransacked, but peculiarly enough the upper floors had apparently not been molested. It is probable that the burglars were frightened away by some noise before they had an opportunity to search the upper stories.

Mr. Hayward immediately notified the police, and the latter have been working on various clues, but up to the present time they have met with but little success.

CHANGES COLOR

Woman Alternates Between Black and White

INDIANAPOLIS, Sept. 2.—Mrs. America Massey of this city is apparently undergoing a third change from white to black. She was born a colored slave in Bowling Green, Ky., in 1846, and lived there till 1896, when she came to Indiana. She is, or was naturally a rather dark mulatto.

In 1884 she began to turn white, and in two years the transformation was complete. By 1888 she was black again, the return to her original color being more rapid than the change from black to white. Shortly after this she began to change again, and soon became perfectly white. Early in the 90s she again turned dark.

When she came here in 1896 she was becoming white very rapidly, and the transformation has remained till within the past few days, when two dark spots appeared on one side of her face and on the other side. She recognized these as the forerunners of the change, but says that it has not been preceded by the itching sensation she experienced preceding the other two changes from black to white and from white to black. She says that she was examined by many physicians in Kentucky when she was undergoing the first change, but none of them could advance any reasonable theory for the transformation.

A PROTEST
AGAINST THE PRESENCE OF THAW IN JAIL

ALBANY, N. Y., Sept. 2.—In a report submitted to the state commission of prisons yesterday, Secretary McLaughlin protests against the further confinement in the Dutchess county jail at Poughkeepsie of Harry K. Thaw. The report among other things says that Thaw's presence in the jail "demoralizes the discipline of the institution."

The report says in part: "He (Thaw) has been held in this jail for several months pending the outcome of litigation, which looks now as though it might be interminable. His presence in this jail is embarrassing to the sheriff and objectionable on many accounts. The sheriff has no room for him except in the padded cell; even this he needs for temporary uses, and it would be an entirely unfit place in which to confine a man for months. Having been educated in sane with homicidal tendencies, the sheriff would not be justified in confining him with the other prisoners."

The result is that the sheriff has to give him an entire corridor with the thirteen cells adjacent, in the principal jail for men. He needs this room for his other prisoners, who want of it makes it impossible for him to properly classify the regular prisoners.

He consumes a large amount of the time of the jailer in escorting him to Pliskin Landing, White Plains and other places to attend hearings before the court and before referees, time which the jailer needs for his other duties. There is a good deal of public talk that some of these hearings are on fake suits, instituted by his friends to give him these outings.

His presence here demoralizes the discipline of the institution. He sleeps in the corridor, not in the cell. He has all the fixtures and paraphernalia of a business office. He orders his food from the hotel, which has to be brought to him three times a day. Silly people send him bouquets of flowers. He is allowed the use of a whole corridor, constituting one-quarter of the entire principal jail for men, while the other prisoners are crowded two in a cell frequently. All these things are under the observation of the other prisoners and create dissatisfaction and a belief that the men with money constitute a separate class even in a prison.

"These things produce an unhealthy feeling of discontent and rebellion among the other prisoners."

"It would seem that a person who had been adjudged insane but who is now conducting proceedings for his discharge on the ground of recovery, should be detained in an institution where he would be under the observation of experts, who could advise the court of his changed mental condition, if it has occurred."

Leal Gave it Up to "Friends"
Killed When Engine Jumped a Frog
Two Took Their Lives in Boston

BOSTON, Sept. 2.—The police of Boston and vicinity are looking for two Italians, who yesterday afternoon succeeded in relieving a fellow countryman, Ernesto F. Leal of 175 Melville avenue, New Bedford, of $270, after the three had become "acquainted" on Water street, Charlestown.

Leal had arrived in Boston, intending to see the sights and later to pay a visit to his native land. He was on his way toward the navy yard, intending to visit the steamship wharf, when the two strangers showed up, and after the formalities which have been used in more than 100 cases of "con game" this year by Italians in this section, Leal was impressed with the necessity of handing over his money to his new friends for safekeeping.

Shortly after doing so, Leal reported to the officers of station 15. The "friends" are about 30 years old, 5 feet 6 inches tall, wore dark clothes and soft hats. One weighed about 130 and the other about 150 pounds.

President Johnson's Efforts to Suppress Betting at Games

The Spit Ball Controversy

Football Outlook

THE announcement by President Johnson of the American league of his determination to attempt to suppress betting at baseball games on that circuit may have seemed an unnecessary precaution to some and an untimely agitation of a painful subject to others. As a matter of fact, it is neither unnecessary nor ill timed. To those familiar with raised a kick against such tactics. Other league magnates had no great love for the scheme, and so the commission has forbidden the offering of special inducements or reward. The players get 50 per cent of the proceeds anyway, and they figure this enough.

As a result of this belated action the owners of the leading teams in the American and National leagues are being blamed by the ball players for the new rule. Anticipating a victory, so it is charged, these magnates wanted to protect themselves against the precedent which almost made it compulsory to present a goodly portion of the gate receipts to the players after

They used the national commission to hide behind, or, to use a slang phrase, made the commission a "fall guy."

With neither pennant decided, the "squawks" will not go up until it is determined just which set of players will be affected by the new rule. Then there will be a yell, and the selfishness of the magnates will be displayed to public view by the players.

Following the custom of former years, most of the big football teams have started practice early. Nearly all of the candidates for big varsities have received orders to report, and by the middle of September the practice itself will be well under way. While it is true that the work does not begin quite as early now as it did ten years ago, when the teams were usually together in the country by the last of August, it is also true that the system has been perfected, and the work done in a shorter time is every bit as effective. Of the big football teams of the country all will have new leaders.

The policy of re-electing a captain is not very often followed out in American college sport. The captain is usually a senior and for that reason is given but one year to make good as a director of the team.

This year should be the best that football has ever known. The changes in the rules made last winter are minor considerations. Strategy has just begun to show itself, and there is no reason why the present fall should not see some wonderful football, even from the smaller college teams. It will be the third year of the forward pass and outside kick. The former will have to prove that the new ruling has reformed it sufficiently to make its stay in the rule book advisable, while the latter is likely to add to its reputation as one of the greatest and most strategic plays of the game.

THOMAS F. CLARK.

STANLEY KETCHEL.

Stanley Ketchel is gradually getting to Tommy Burns. Indeed, unless Ketchel decides, Johnson or Langford as his opponent it will have to be Tommy Burns. Ketchel whipped Kelly so decisively that there is no longer any question as to who has a clear claim to the middleweight title.

But the wonderful Mighlander is getting heavier every day, and it is only a question of a year at the longest before he will be too big to make the middleweight limit. Then Ketchel will have to step into the heavyweight division, and everybody that has seen Ketchel in action during the past year predicts that he will be the man to wrest the title from Tommy Burns.

Ketchel is very popular just now. He is of the type of pugilist that takes with the followers of ring fighting. He jumps in and wins quickly. But Ketchel may get himself in bad if he decides to draw the color line. When a man adopts pugilism as a so called profession he is expected to meet all comers. In the case of Langford he cannot hide behind the excuse that a battle with the negro from Boston would not prove a drawing card.

WAGNER'S BAD LUCK.

A ludicrous incident in Wagner's career happened in Chicago a few years ago. Hans had on a new pair of uniform pants. They were too tight. During the contest, while playing short, he put his hands in his hip pocket to get a piece of plug chewing tobacco. His hand stuck in the pocket, and while Hans was vainly trying to extricate it Frank Chance popped up an easy infield fly right above Hans' head. Hans struggled and said things, and perspiration poured from his face, the crowd howled in glee and the ball dropped safely a few feet away.

CY YOUNG USES FEW CURVES.

Sam Crawford of the Detroit Tigers gives a good reason for the continued success of Cy Young, who is now in his nineteenth year as a pitcher. "Young has lasted so long, I think," says Sam, "because he seldom uses a curve ball, and when he does pitch one it is just a little twister. The curve wears a man's arm out more quickly than does speed. Young depends almost solely on his speed and control. If he had used a curve ball the way the average pitcher does, I don't think he would be up there today the way he is."

scans it speedily, suppresses a great cry of exultation, folds Olga in his arms and almost carries her from the studio. As the door closes behind them Dr. Miller, with a sigh that seems half regretful and with his features still beaming benignantly, consults his timepiece, dons his greatcoat and high hat, grasps his bag and umbrella and goes his way, stopping only long enough to observe, half cynically, half pathetically, and never once forgetting to smile, "There you have it!"

Frankly, "The Devil" is a remarkable play, a powerful play, a play that will inspire the widest discussion. A friend, a clergyman, as it happens, tells me that it impresses him as being the greatest morality play of the day. I do not agree with him. To me it is the spirit of evil made dominant, almost defined. Virtue is never once given an opportunity to assert itself. It is a return to the devil of the middle ages.

ISADORA DUNCAN, AMERICAN DANCER, LONDON SENSATION, NOW ON AN AMERICAN TOUR.

Sensational Features of the Opening Dramatic Season

[From Our New York Dramatic Correspondent]

THE dramatic season has opened with a flourish of theatrical trumpets which amounts to an actual fanfare. Most of this unusual preliminary activity is due to the managerial competition which has arisen over the production of "The Devil," a play by Franz Molnar, which has had a remarkable run in European playhouses. Some time ago Colonel Henry W. Savage secured the rights—by thought he had—to produce this play in America. He had a translation made from the original Hungarian, selected a cast, had it rehearsed and played it in Hartford, Conn., under the title of "The Cloven Hoof." He thought so highly of it that he determined to open the Garden theater, New York, with it early in the autumn. Then he went on his vacation happy in the belief that he had in his exclusive possession a thriller which would thrill.

Conceive of the energetic colonel's amazement and quick indignation when one morning as he was taking his coffee and newspaper in fancied security he discovered among the theatrical advertisements an announcement to the effect that a rival manager was going to play "The Devil" on a date earlier than the one already designated by the man who had given us "The Cloven Hoof" and "The Merry Widow" and had promised us a hero in the person of his Satanic majesty!

After a bad half hour for himself and possibly for those in his immediate vicinity Colonel Savage got exceedingly busy. Before high noon of that very day he had arranged to raise the devil of his own exclusive vintage on the same night selected by Mr. Harrison Grey Fiske, the keen manager who had stolen a march on him, to make good his promise to be first in this devilish business the colonel agreed to raise his devil at 8:15 precisely. Mr. Fiske had already admitted that he would not do the trick until 8:20.

Two Real Devils.

George Arliss at the Belasco just as real a devil as is Mr. Edwin Stevens at the Garden?

"The Devil" is in three acts, and in each of them Molnar has set forth boldly in dialogue and action the varying passions of the human soul. From first to last the devil seems to be laughing at the very human weaknesses which he is portraying. The plot is not an especially novel one, but it is worked out with great ingenuity. The devil makes his appearance soon after the curtain rises on the first act and is the last to leave the stage when all is over. From beginning to end it is the devil who dominates everybody and everything. The play opens in the studio of a young artist, Karl Mahler in the Savage version, who has achieved a reputation as a portrait painter. Six years previously Karl had met Olga Hoffman, then a poor girl, and the pair had been lovers in the most conventional sense of the term. A rich sultan came along, and Olga married him without love. All went well until, after six years, the rich husband brought his wife to the artist's studio to have her picture painted.

Then the trouble begins. The husband leaves the wife in the studio while he goes on a business errand, promising to call for her in half an hour or so. It is almost nightfall, but there is time for a preliminary sketch. Both Karl and Olga feel conscious and strangely embarrassed. Both realize that time has not converted the early affection into mere platonic friendship, and the knowledge makes them awkward and their conversation irrelevant. Olga wears a high-necked blouse, and they both remember that the husband requires a picture showing neck and shoulders. Karl provides some dexterity and retires modestly from the room while Olga adjusts it. While she is in the act the devil appears—a middle-aged gentleman in scrupulously correct afternoon dress who has apparently been dozing in a chair behind a screen. Olga screams, the intruder apologizes humbly, and the artist comes to the rescue, the beautiful neck and shoulders still uncovered.

Of course the devil makes his presence appear to be quite the most natural thing in the world. He wouldn't be the real thing if he failed to do so.

He half convinces the artist that he is an old acquaintance, and his Chesterfieldian manners reassure Olga. He proceeds at once to fan the flame which is only smoldering. Before the husband returns to the studio this suave devil has accomplished wonders in the way of speeding the downfall of these two agitated souls.

That night Olga gives a party at her house, and Karl resolves to escape from the impending danger by proposing to Elsa Berg, a rich young girl who loves him. The devil, masquerading as Dr. Miller, makes his appearance among the guests attired in the most irreproachable evening dress and soon dominates the entire situation. Before the evening is over he succeeds in overcoming every moral scruple which has restrained the infatuated lovers, and before he leaves the house he compels Olga to indite a letter to Karl in which she confesses that his regard is more precious to her than any other consideration, earthly or otherwise. The devil puts the mis- sive in his pocket, promising to deliver it to the artist, and bids the wretched woman a bland good evening.

The Victim Hesitates.

In the morning, in an agony of fear and postmortem penitence, Olga hastens to the studio resolved to recover possession of the damaging letter at any cost. Just as the artist is assuring her that he has not received it the devil enters and, begging pardon for the delay, hands Karl a sealed epistle. At the sight of it Olga makes a frantic appeal to the artist to throw it into the fire without reading it. Without a word of dissent he tears it into shreds and tosses the pieces into the grate.

It is then that the most amazing thing happens. Almost before the last flicker of the burning pieces of paper has disappeared Olga is dominated by a fierce reaction and declares madly that she would give all that she holds precious in life to have the letter again. "What would you do with it?" asks the bogus Dr. Miller, with a smile that is almost philanthropic. "Would you give it to your husband?"

"No," the frenzied woman shrieks. "I would give it to Karl."

Still smiling benevolently, his Satanic modesty pulls another letter from the pocket of his coat and hands it to the artist. "I beg a thousand pardons," he confesses softly. "I made the mistake of handing you the bill of my tailor. This is the note in question."

Karl tears it from the envelope.

KILLED BY BLOW

Tammany Chief Staggered Home With His Skull Fractured

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—Philip McGovern, one of the best known Tammany captains of the 11th assembly district, whose saloon on the northeast corner of Forty-third street and Ninth avenue, was a favorite place for the political followers of the McGoverns, Tammany leader of that district, is dead of a fractured skull, and his friends in the district are insinuating that he was the victim of a black-jack. The case puzzles the police.

McGovern got up at 5 o'clock Sunday morning and said he was going down Ninth avenue to Twenty-sixth street. He told his wife that he would be back for breakfast, and his family knowing that he was interested in the business in that section of the city sought no more about it until McGovern staggered up the three flights of stairs an hour later. He managed to open the door of the apartment, then without a word fell in a heap. All efforts to arouse him were unavailing. He died on the operating table.

Dr. Quackenbush was trepanning McGovern's skull when the patient died.

"It was one of the worst fractures I have ever seen in all my career," said Dr. Quackenbush, "and in my opinion the blow had made it was inflicted by a strong-arm man. Mr. McGovern was unconscious when I got to him, and from the moment he collapsed until he died in the New York College hospital he never even partially recovered consciousness."

"I am told that Mr. McGovern always carried a large sum of money about with him, usually from $200 to $1000, but his family said that when he fell unconscious in his apartment there was only 5 cents in his pockets."

The news that Phil McGovern was dead, and that he was probably the victim of a strong-arm man, was about the only topic of conversation in the 11th assembly district. Everybody knew McGovern, and all said he had been a kind-hearted man, who talked little.

FATALLY BURNED

THE CHILD WAS PLAYING WITH MATCHES IN HER HOME.

ROCKLAND, Mass., Sept. 2.—Gertrude Pickering, the six-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Pickering, who recently moved here from Providence, R. I., was fatally burned while playing with matches late yesterday in the cellar of the home of her aunt, Mrs. Wilbur Hixon, on Vernon street.

THE ALDERMEN Held a Meeting Last Night

AND REFUSED TO CONFIRM THE MAYOR'S APPOINTMENT.

OF Leroy M. Turner to Be Inspector of Milk and Vinegar—Six Traverse Jurors Were Drawn—Petitions for Personal Injuries Referred to Committee.

The board of aldermen held an after-noon meeting last night and while the meeting was not a very important one, quite a lot of business was gone through with.

The board did not confirm the mayor's appointment of Leroy M. Turner to the office of inspector of milk and vinegar. There was a question as to whether or not Mr. Turner was a practical chemist.

The following traverse jurors were drawn by Alderman Comerford: Gardner Wills, 15 Hampshire street, clerk; Peter H. Savage, 24 Ames street, undertaker; James Liston, 58 Concord street, janitor; George E. McKiddler, 36 Lincoln street, pattern maker; Frank J. Danahy, 32 State street, plasterer; and Thomas England, 42 Wernock street, dressmaker.

The petition of E. A. Bates, agent of the health board, for an appropriation of $300 for the care of a smallpox patient, was referred to the committee on appropriations.

A petition by Peter J. Brady for damage to machinery was referred to the committee on claims.

The N. E. Tel. & Tel. Co. petitioned for a hearing relative to pole locations at the corner of Wedge and Laurel streets, for relocation of poles in Rhodora street, for relocation of poles in Westford street and Sept. 15 was the date set for the hearings.

Eugene E. Stoughton petitioned for the right to move a building in Midland street, and Sept. 15 was the date set for the hearing on the matter.

James Coughlin and Lester C. Hill gave notice of personal injuries and their petitions were referred to the committee on claims.

The mayor's appointment of Leroy M. Turner to the office of inspector of milk and vinegar was read. Alderman Comerford wanted to know if Mr. Turner is a practical chemist, and Alderman Gray said he understood that Mr. Turner had been a chemist in the laboratory of the C. I. Hood Co. Rule 13 was not suspended, and the appointment will lay on the table under the rules.

The joint order to discontinue street watering in Tenth and Beacon streets was adopted.

A joint resolution to lower the sewer in Dutton street a distance of 20 feet to a point opposite the centre of Music Hall avenue, so-called, was adopted.

A resolution to lay a surface water drain in Billerica street, the cost to be charged to the appropriation for sewer construction in Wigganville, was adopted.

A resolution to lay a pond in Kensington street was adopted.

A petition to change the hours of voting in the city of Lowell to the hours between 6 a. m. and 4 p. m., signed by 100 citizens, was read. Mr. Gray favored the change, because he believed that there was much confusion caused owing to the different hours of polling between primaries and elections. The petition, as an amendment to the original order, was defeated. Adjourned.

JOHN E. REDMOND

DUBLIN, Sept. 2.—At a meeting yesterday of the Central branch of the United Irish league, John Redmond, who presided, dilated upon the importance of the last parliamentary session so far as Ireland was concerned. He considered the Irish university bill one of the greatest emancipating measures of the century, and he should always be proud of his share in its adoption. Ireland, he said, would receive nearly $4,000,000 a year under the old age pensions bill, which would benefit 70,000 people in Ireland. These and other measures were the substantial results of their parliamentary work.

He uttered a warning to the British government, however, that there was still important work to be done in connection with land legislation and the congested districts, failing which the nationalists would not be responsible for the maintenance of peace in Ireland.

A resolution was adopted embodying the customary demand for home rule. A letter was read from Stephen O'Hara, resigning from his position as trustee of the Irish parliamentary fund, on the ground that he is out of sympathy with the policy of the nationalist party, which he accuses of being satisfied to accept whatever crumbs fall from the liberal table.

COUNTLESS SZECHENYI'S CONDITION CAUSES ALARM

VIENNA, Sept. 2.—A despatch received here from Budapest states that Countess Szechenyi is seriously ill, following her announcement of a still-born child, but according to the latest reports the immediate danger is past, although she will be confined to bed, it is feared, for a long time. It appears that the countess started a few days ago on an automobile tour with her husband when she suddenly became ill. She was conveyed home to Ungvar castle and as speedily as possible doctors were summoned from Budapest. The countess's mother, Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt of New York, has been requested by cable to come to Budapest.

EUROPEAN BANKERS

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—Senator Daniel of Virginia, Rep. Vreeland of New York and Rep. Overstreet of Indiana, a subcommittee of the congressional banking and monetary systems of Europe, arrived yesterday on the steamship Kronprinz Wilhelm.

The commission was treated with the greatest kindness and cordiality by the great bankers of London. The governor of the Bank of England, and two of his managing directors, came before the commission and submitted to interrogatories in detail in relation to the workings of their systems. The managers of four or five of the great joint stock banks in London also came before the commission and gave freely and in great detail all the information desired.

"The commission went thoroughly into the question of branch banking, of reserves, of workings of their currency system and other important details relating to the subject."

"The bankers of Great Britain are greatly interested in the American situation, because the money panic in the United States of October, 1907 put a very severe strain upon the Bank of England and the great banks of London. Similar interest in our monetary conditions exists also in Berlin and Paris."

"The sub-committee, consisting of Senator Daniel, Mr. Overstreet and myself, visited Paris. The governor of the Bank of France gave the commission a whole afternoon in answering all questions asked. Particularly that of the great national bank. We found that both the English and French bankers are thoroughly satisfied with their banking and currency systems."

Senator Aldrich, chairman of the commission and Prof. Andrews of Harvard, who has been employed by the commission, are now in Berlin, getting information along the same lines as that secured in London and Paris.

"The commission could have put in another month in Europe to great advantage. We have so far obtained only the opinions of the banking side of the question. We found the bankers in the country districts thoroughly satisfied with the system, but we must still secure information as to how their systems are viewed by those outside of the banking business, the merchants, manufacturers and the great masses of people. We also intend to take up thoroughly the banking system of Scotland and Canada, as the systems of these countries have been looked upon with much favor by many Americans."

"It was the desire of the commission to make its report a mine of exact information upon monetary matters. It does not follow that a system which may be thoroughly satisfactory in a country like France or England would be best adapted to the United States, with its great expanse of territory and its enormous and increasing business. No attempt will be made to frame a measure along these lines to present at the coming session. It is probable some recommendations will be made as to a revision of our administrative banking laws. For example, a more efficient examination of national banks. Beyond this nothing will be attempted."

"The commission gave special attention to the workings of the postal savings banks of England and France. The bankers of Paris gave us one bit of information which was something of a surprise to us, that is, that at least four hundred millions of dollars is hoarded by the people of France that is not deposited in banks."

TRAINS CRASHED

Rear End Collision on B. & M., at Andover Last Night

ANDOVER, Sept. 2.—A train on the western division of the Boston & Maine railroad crashed into the rear end of another train just north of the passenger station here last night. That the latter was in motion undoubtedly saved the lives of many passengers. Several were badly shaken up, but only one, Dennis Lane of Haverhill, had to be attended by a physician and he was able to proceed to his home later in the evening. His face was cut some by falling glass and he was badly shaken up.

The second train is a regular passenger train from Boston, due at Andover just before 8 o'clock and was in charge of conductor Joseph Donohy of Boston. The other was an extra, consisting of 14 empty Pullman cars, and was in charge of Conductor John Woolfide of Boston.

The passenger train made the stop at Andover and was just pulling out of the station when the accident occurred. Conductor Donohy claims that he had a brakeman out signaling any following train, but on account of a curve the signal was not seen in time to prevent the collision. The rear car was badly damaged and had to be abandoned and the locomotive on the extra sustained considerable damage, but not enough to put it out of commission.

LANGFORD'S BOUT

He Had the Advantage Over Jeannette

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—Sam Langford of Boston and Joe Jeannette, of New Jersey, met last night at the National Athletic club, and Langford clearly won.

They boxed six rounds and in only one of these Jeannette showed to any shade of advantage. He was knocked down twice in the opening round with right hand smashes and again in the fifth he took a count of eight seconds from a left and a right to the head and jaw.

Neither man seemed to be in the championship class. While Langford was always on the aggressive and effective, at that he was unable to block big Joe's left hand jabs, and it was a pretty even battle up to the end of the fourth round, where Langford's stock was away up on lightning, some of his heavy blows being more than effective. Jeannette tried his punishment well and for a brief period in the third round he hammered and rushed Langford to the ropes, but he was not able to take advantage of any opportunity and Langford easily got back at every call of the bell and won by a big margin on points.
